House-Senate tax compromise sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate and House conferees met today to iron out differences between their versions of a multi-billion-dollar tax cut amid predictions that Congress will complete action on a compromise by Wednesday.

They were joined by Secretary of the Treasury William E. Simon and his chief tax aides. The conferees and their tax staff experts gathered in a small meeting room just off the House chamber. After posing for pictures, they ordered the doors closed.

"We'll try to finish today if possible," said Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee and head of the House conferees. He said it would be a tough conference.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and leader of the Senate conferees, said he expected controversial provisions on repeal of the oil depletion allowance to be taken up last.

The final package to be sent to President Ford will total somewhere between the $19.9 billion in cuts voted by the House and the $33.1-billion package voted by the Senate. It also may include a provision ending the controversial oil depletion allowance for major producers, lawmakers agreed.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen, speaking Sunday on CBS' "Face the Nation," said Ford has not ruled out the possibility a veto, although he will not decide until he sees the final bill.

Nessen indicated that some of the amendments to the tax bills were causing some concern to the President.

"If they do send it up (to the White House) with amendments which have not been considered and which don't have anything to do with a clean and simple antirecession tax cut, he has not ruled out a veto," Nessen said.

Ways and Means Committee Chairman Al Ullman, appearing on ABC's "Issues and Answers," said many amendments in the Senate version cannot be justified and predicted the conferees would eliminate many Senate additions.

Cape man injured in accident

Needham Oral Parr, 55, of Cape Girardeau was slightly injured at 9:45 p.m. Saturday when his car ran off the road on North Kingshighway and ended up in a ditch.

Parr's car missed the curve when North Kingshighway joins North Main Street. He was northbound on the street when the accident occurred.

Parr was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital complaining of a headache, but he reportedly left the emergency room before a doctor arrived.

No arrest was made, police said.

Tornadoes reported in Bootheel

Turbulent weather over the weekend touched off two tornadoes in Southeast Missouri, according to the highway patrol.

At 2:20 a.m. today a tornado destroyed a dairy barn and blew the roof off a small building on the Midway Dairy Farm three miles south of Jackson, in Cape Girardeau Co. A mobile home owned by Freddie Ristig of Jackson was also damaged.

Saturday at 12:01 a.m. at Bird's Corner, four miles west of Gray Ridge in Stoddard County, a trailer owned by Dennis McGarity was destroyed. The trailer was located one-half mile south of a house owned by Ed McGarity, which had considerable glass damage. A cotton picker near the house was turned halfway around by the storm.

Dennis McGarity suffered minor leg injuries as a result of the storm.

21 hurt in traffic

Twenty-one people were injured in five area traffic accidents over the weekend, according to the highway patrol.

Two of the accidents occurred Sunday, accounting for 15 of the injury victims.

Nine persons were injured at 1:30 p.m. Sunday in a three-vehicle accident three miles east of Doniphan on Highway 160.

Kevin W. Ganfill, 16, of Fairdealing received serious injuries when he attempted to pass a westbound pickup truck driven by Dennis V. Ray, 17, of Doniphan and his westbound car collided head on with car driven by William R. Huckabee, 41, of Maynard, Ark.

Huckabee received minor injuries and his wife, Dorothy Huckabee, 34, suffered serious injuries. Six other passengers with minor injuries included Karen Huckabee, 11, Keith Huckabee, 2, Christine Huckabee, 15, Issac Huckabee, 5, Joe Huckabee, 11, and Lisa Huckabee, 7.

All of the injury victims were taken to Ripley County Memorial Hospital in Doniphan for treatment. Ganfill was later transferred to Lucy Lee Hospital in

Madrid youth killed when airplane crashes

NEW MADRID — The 17-year-old pilot of a crop spraying plane, Douglas Leon Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Hall of Route, One, was killed Saturday when his 1971 Gruman Ag-Cat crashed and burst into flames.

The accident occurred at 3:30 p.m. at Hall, a lilcensed pilot, was aerial spraying ammoniun nitrate over the family farm located off state Route P about one and a half miles north of the LaForge community.

The boy's father, who was acting as flagger on the ground, witnessed the crash.

New Madrid County Coroner Gene Clayton said Hall told him his son had made a pass across the field and had banked the plane to make a return trip when it suddenly nosed downward in a slight spin. The plane did not strike any obstacles, Clayton said, and the father reported the engine had not failed.

The front end of the aircraft was destroyed by the fire that ignited when it struck the ground at a 45-degree angle.

Hall reached the scene of the wreckage within minutes but was prevented from getting his son out of the plane due to the intense heat of the flames which were fed by the fuel and chemicals.

The body was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston for an autopsy examination required by the Federal Aviation Administration.

An investigative team dispatched by the National Transportation Safety Board was at the site Sunday gathering evidence to determine the cause of the accident.

Services for young Hall, a New Madrid High School senior, were conducted at 2 p.m. today in the New Madrid Baptist Church by the Rev. Ted Thedford of Walnut Ridge, Ark.

Burial followed at Memorial Park Cemetery in Sikeston with Richards Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

He was born July 21, 1957 at Sikeston.

In addition to his parents, he is survived by three brothers, James Michael, John Mark and Steven Craig Hall of the home; maternal grandmother, Mrs. Cleo Gilmer of New Madrid Route One; and paternal grandmother, Mrs. Ethel Hall of New Madrid Route One.

Finance forms mailed today

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The long-awaited forms for filing campaign financing information under the state's new election practices act were finally put in the mail today, Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick said.

Although it will take several days for completion of the entire mailing process to election officers around the state, the forms should be in the hands of all candidates in time to comply with the reporting requirement following actual balloting.

Under the new law, approved by voters last November and effective Jan. 1, candidates for nearly all elected offices must file reports on contributions and spending, twice before the election and within 30 days or before they take office after the balloting.

The new Missouri Elections Commission, which was created to adminster the law, approved the forms last Thursday and since then copies have been printed for use by candidates in the Kansas City election Tuesday and the April elections in other cities and school districts around thestate.

The two reporting deadlines prior to the spring elections have already passed and compliance with the reporting requirements was waived due to lack of forms.

But because the forms are now available, the final report, which will include financing information for the entire camd aign. willee rreeqred.

Kirkpatrick said the rush on the forms for the final report was necessary because some elected candidates will take office prior to the end of the 30-day period and will have to file the forms before that time.

Kansas City municipal officials elected in the Tuesday balloting will be sworn in April 10.

Band receives top rating

The Sikeston High School band, directed by Pat Curry, received an overall rating of I, the highest rating given, at the Southeast Missouri district music contest Saturday at Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau.

Seven individual soloists from Sikeston High School and a flute trio also received I ratings. Other soloists and a brass quitent received II ratings.

Performances are rated I, II, III, IV, or V.

The I rating is described as excellent - the very finest conceivable performance for the event being judged, worthy of distinction of being recognized among the very best. A II is described as superior and reflects unusually good performance in most respects with only minor defects, yet is a performance of distinctive qualty.

The band received three I ratings on their performance of two numbers, "The Black Horse Troop" and "Sonus Ventorum", and a II rating on sightreading of an unfamiliar piece of music. The overall average was a I rating.

Soloists receiving I ratings and their instruments were Jan Teague , French horn; Jay Lopp, trumpet; Greg Danner, French horn; Kevin Heuiser, baritone saxophone; Bryan Crites, snare drum; Andrea Harber, piano; and Carolyn Dupont, harp. Members of the I-rated flute trio were Kathy Cope, Laura Noyes and Tera Williams.

Students receiving I ratings are eligible to compete in the state music contest April 26 in Columbia. The band does not compete in the state contest.

Receiving II ratings were Bruce Walker, trumpet; Nancee Hurley, flute; Kathy Cope, flute; Debbie Hunt, violin; Andrea Harber, voice; and the brass quintet composed of Jon Moore, Kirk Durbin, Kert MacLaughlin, Holly Hendon and Jan Teague.

Cline will not seek higher office at present

State Rep. C.F. Cline of Sikeston said Saturday he is not interested in seeking higher office at the present time.

Cline, a Democrat who represents portions of Scott and Stoddard counties (15th District), has been urged recently to run for the State Senate seat held by Al Spradling, a Cape Girardeau Democrat.

Cline made his statement at an appreciation banquet held in his honor at the Ramada Inn. About 200 people attended.

I'm into the third month of a two-year term," Cline said, adding that all his "energy, efforts and drive" would be channeled into fulfilling this term, his second since first being elected in November 1972.

Cline did not close the door permanently to higher office. "We'll cross that bridge when we get to it," he said.

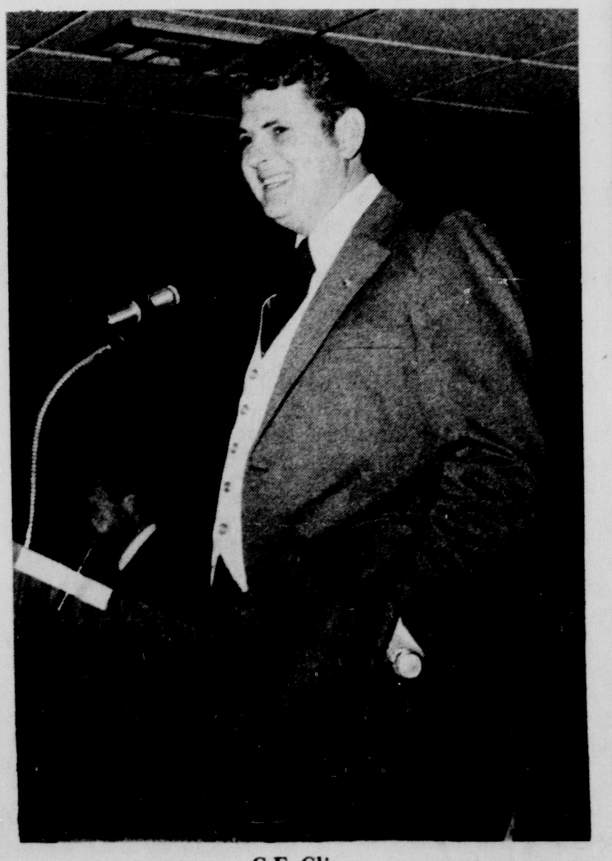

State Auditor George Lehr was the guest speaker, replacing State Treasurer a James Spainhower, who was hospitalized Friday by stomach pains.

Cline is his own man in Jefferson City, Lehr said. He's not someone who always follows the party line or a preconceived political philosophy.

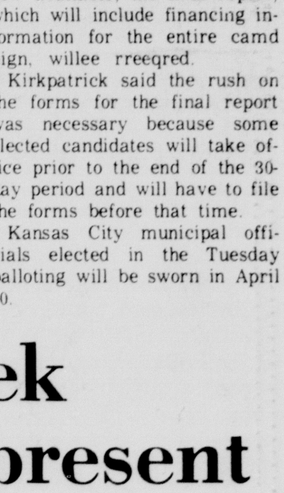

Cline votes his conscience, Lehr said, realizes there is more than one side to an issue.

Rep. Richard Rabbitt, speaker of the Missouri House of Representatives, said Cline was named to important committees because he had shownconsiderable ability and dedication during his first term.

Besides Spainhower, Secretary of State James Kirkpatrick and 10th District Rep. Bill Burlison were unable to attend. because of other commitments.

THE GOOD OLD ELECTION DAYS

'Way back in the early 19th century, when America was a nation of farmers, legislation directed that national elections take place during the first week of November because "Harvesting is over then, and winter has not yet made the roads impassable."

Tuesday was designated instead of Monday, says the National Geographic Society's historical oddities division, because many voters lived a day's journey from a polling place and objected to traveling on Sunday.

Despite the vast changes that have overtaken American since then, there seems no particular reason to abandon the custom. At least one state, however, is going to consider doing away with another relic of the old days.

Ohio State Rep. John A. Galbraith plans to introduce legislation to allow liquor stores and bars in the state to operate normally on election day. At present, bars may open for business but can sell only low-powered beer.

The law was passed to try to keep unscrupulous politicians from buying votes with drinks. "I think we have now advanced beyond that," says Galbraith.

Cynics would agree.These days the problem is not politicians buying votes but the other way around.

Furious, the husband phoned the supermarket in the expectation of refuting his wife. He asked to speak to the vice-president in charge of prunes.

"Which kind? " was the reply. "Packaged or bulk?"

There is little doubt that we are becoming highly specialized in almost every field of human endeavor. It is one of our strengths. Unfortunately, it's also one of our weaknesses.

The man who devotes his entire time and effort to one particular kind of problem develops special skills and knowledge which make him an expert in that particular area. Without exposure to other concerns, however, he may also develop "tunnel vision." Tunnel vision, says the Wall Street Journal, prevents executives from seeing beyond the special problems of their own departments. It results in a "narrow, one-sided , inflexible view."

It's a common ailment - even among otherwise competent leaders. Most managers or supervisors get their start, of necessity, in one specialty or another. The tendency - at the bottom of the ladder - is for people to know more and more about less and less. Unfortdunately, the more knowledgeable some individuals become in their own work, the more all-important it becomes, in their way of thinking, and less sensitive they are to the viewpoints of people in other departments.

How does a manager widen his own viewpoint and that of the people under him? The best way is by recognizing the dangers of "tunnel vision" and fighting against it from the very start. He uses every possible contact to broaden his point of view and to understand the problems of the other departments and the business as a whole.

He doesn't build a fence around his department. He makes an effort to understand the jobs of other executives and what their departments are trying to accomplish.

He doesn't automatically take issue with everything they say, and act as if their work is in competition with his own. Nor does he respond in kind when the other fellow does something shortsighted.

He also makes a real effort to see where his activity fits in the overall picture. He knows that many problems cut across organization lines - what's best for his section or department may not always be what's best for the company as a whole. He appreciates the difference between a department and company point of view.

You'll seldom find him mistaking his corner of the office for the whole building.

STILL ON SHORT RATIONS

U. S. railroads have been doing a record freight hauling job -- including the movement of heavy grain shipments for export. A natural assumption would be that rail earnings should go up along with increased traffic. Earnings have, in fact, risen -- marginally. But the principal thing rail earnings reports show is the continuing urgency of a new national policy toward the nation's railroads -- a policy that will encourage the initiative of private enterprise.

Operating revenues of the rails set an all-time high of $13.4 billion in 1972. But, for the sixth straight year, the industry's rate of return on net investment remained below 3 percent. An industry report states that U.S. railroads have "... not reached a 3 per cent rate since 1966, and this would be only half the level the Interstate Commerce Commission has said the railroads must reach if they are to keep up with present and future demands." Measured by the cold statistics of earnings, the manner in which he rails have handled soaring transportation demands is all the more remarkable. They have vastly improved the capacity and operating efficiency of the freight car fleet. They have pushed ahead with technological improvements that make the huge grain hauling job they must now accomplish less disruptive of the nation's freight movement than it would otherwise be.

Instead of kicking at their performance, it is time to visualize what our railroads could accomplish if they were granted the rate of return which the government's top regulatory agency has said they shouldhave if they are to achieve what the country expects of them.

TIME FOR PUBLIC REJECTION

Union organization in such an industry as construction is essential in giving the individual workingman the clout to bargain with his employer for safe working conditions and adequate levelsof pay. But violence and lawbreaking, destruction of property and physical intimidation have no rightful place in the actions of building trades unions. Yet such actions, instigated by criminal elements, are common.

Mr. Charles Stevenson reports on some of these actions in the July Reader's Digest. He writes, "Squeezed by skyrocketing construction costs, wage increases, work slowdowns, featherbedding, jurisdictional disputes and outright corruption, builders in search of a full day's work for a full day's pay are increasingly turning from closed union shops to open, independent shops." Some unions within the building trades, instead of seeking to make their service competitive, have resorted to brutal guerrilla warfare to stop those jobs that hire anyone but their own members. Mr. Stevenson cites many cases. In one instance, 1,000 men were transported to a $15-million hotel and office complex building site. Breaking through protecting fences, they wreaked destruction on the building site for 45 minutes to the tune of $300,000. According to Mr. Stevenson, the destruction was halted at a prearranged signal, sandwiches and soft drinks were passed out, and "Although state troopers finally arrived in force, not one arrest was made."

The Digest article calls for federal legislation to stop such terrorism where it exists and local law enforcement agencies and countys do not, for whatever reason, take effective counteraction.A situation such as described here should arouse the ire of every law-abiding person in the nation.

SAFEGUARDING THE SEAS

Control of pollution of the oceans presents a unique problem. It depends upon the initiative and good faith of the maritime industries of many nations. A striking demonstration of leadership in accepting this obligation has been given by the U.S. shipping industry.

The president of the American Instutute of Merchant Shipping testified that his organization, whose membership operates two thirds of the ships in the active U.S. Merchant Marine, gives complete support to both the Convention providing a clean-up fund and the Civil Liability Convention it is designed to supplement. He added, "By ratifying these two Conventions, the United States can provice the opportunity for its citizens and government to collect for oil pollution damages even when oil is spilled from a vessel registered in a non-Contracting (participating) State and pollution is caused on our land or in our territorial seas. The Fund may be tapped by victims in the case of a vessel which would not otherwise come under U.S. jurisdiction because it is traveling between two foreign countries..."The maritime spokesman's statement included these signigficant words, "The shipping industry is doing its best to prevent accidents of the the type that would bring the Conventions into play. Our support for the proposals is intended as an admission that perfection is not possible and as evidence that we aim to meet our responsibility to protect the environment."

Behind the somewhat technical language lies the obvious determination of the U.S. maritime industry to use every available resource in the preservation of the marine environment. For its part, the public should, in fairness, remember that in maritime pollution control as in any other endeavor, "perfection is not possible"--and make due allowances for this unchangeable fact of life.

HEART OF TRASPORTATION

To a country that, from the day of its founding, has partaken generously even profligately of the natural endowments granted it by nature, entering an era of restraint comes hard and is frequently accompanied by curious contradictions. On the one hand, people are urged to turn off lights and TV sets when leaving a room. Land is becoming scarcer in relation to people. Yet, often there is inertia when it comes to adopting logical measures for making the most of some of our most obvious assets. America's railroads are one of these assets. A string of cars running on steel rails is one of the most efficient movers of goods ever invented. Despite this fact, public inertia at the legislative level has jeopardized the life of U.S. railroads which remain a key to where and how millions of us will live in the future.

The Department of Transportation predicts that the nation's overall freight loads will double by 1985. Contemplation of today's congested highways, together with land and environmental problems, envelopes this prediction in formidable question marks.The railroads now haul about 40 percent of the total load, and their share could increase in view of greater attention being given to ecological and fuel considerations. Railroads move more than three times as much freight per gallon of fuel as big trucks. They pollute the air far less than trucks carrying the same load. And studies indicate that by pursuing present trends toward bigger equipment, more modern facilities and faster operations, railroads can increase their capacity seven times over without requiring more land for rights-of-way.

In this opening era of greater consciousness of the necessity of making the most of what we have, how much longer can the public, the lawmakers and our so-called transortation experts continue to treat the railroads as an appendage rather than the heart of America's surface transportation system?

Inside Labor

Pouring On the Heat: Massive Labor Demonstration Chiefs Tell All
539 Congressmen To Come Out and Heed

WASHINGTON--Now it's the whole Congress--every single member of the Senate and House--which is being put on the spot by America's most powerful labor leaders. It will be a big spot. In fact an entire section of the J.F. Kennedy Stadium reserved for 600 lawmakers and some of their aides.

Each will receive a special invitation to come and listen on Saturday, April 26. They'll hear plenty. Sharp attacks on President Ford. Demands for the resignation of the outspoken Secretary of the Treasury William Simon. Outcries for the boiling, in scarce oil, of Federal Reserve Board chairman Arthur Burns. Expenditures of some $40 billion for "Jobs Now."

The special invitations simply will ask the Congressmen to come to a stadium filled with protesting AFL-CIO members, jobless and working.

From all over the East the AFL-CIO's Industrial Union Department (I.U.D.), chaired by steelworkers chief I.W. (Abe) Abel, will call in scores of thousands of protestors.

They are scheduled to gather at special central points--and then "March on Washington," meaning the big stadium which can squeeze in some 60,000 people.

The spotlight will be on the special congressional section as well as the speakers platform. "And we'll know who comes and who doesn't," said one of the demonstration's organizers, "and we'll not forget when election time rolls around."

Now, this is no ordinary march, parade or demonstration. It is the first such workers concentration called officially by the AFL-CIO, albeit in the name of Abel's IUD. Labor chief George Meany never is one for mass protests. He is known to believe you can get more by going in the back of the White House than by protesting in front of it.

But the pressure from the field has been enormus. In some cites big crowds seeking public jobs have smashed through doors or actually heavily damaged official buildings. In at least two states there have been threats of public workers' strikes which would paralyze them.

Already there have been demonstrations in front of state capitals.

Union leaders in several cites planned marches on Washington. Significance here is that none of these are the way-out leftists, or "crazies and kooks." Planners of the April 26 concentration are the national labor leaders. They want it "inside," meaning the stadium, so it can be handled and the revolutionary sects which string along like political campfollowers won't be able to provoke stampedes or running battles as once they did during the anti-war demonstrations.

No one really knows just how many will bus in or roll in by train, auto and truck. Some expect over 100,000. Some look to pack the stadium with some 58,000 despite the space reserved for the 439 House members and 100 Sentors.

It will have the effect of an old-fashioned labor rally during the depression '30s. Calls for mass action. Calls for similar demonstrations in a hundred other cities. Demands for immediate job-making programs regardless of cost.

Actually no one really knows the total of what's to be called for. Sounds like $40 billion--some $11 billion in congressional bills calling for state and local matching funds; calls for the release of $19 billion for construction, impounded since the Nixon days; calls for extended, even permanent unemployment insurance at a rate of 75 per cent of past wages, and lots more.

And they mean it. Further, the labor people have a political and lobbying machine on the Hill to fight for it.

All in all, it will be a bad fortnight for President Ford. On April 18, he's now scheduled to run one of his domestic problems barnstorming meetings in Concord, N.H.--just about a year from the primaries.

Yet, probably on April 21, the Building and Construction Trades Department (AFL-CIO) will bring some 7,500 of its leaders into Washington for a job rally. Then they'll fan out and lobby the Hill. They'll try to see the President.

Some construction leaders, such as the sheetmetal workers' Ed Carlough, will keep their people over for mini demonstrations. Protesters will begin drifting in for the big one on the following Saturday when Mr. Ford's program will be shredded by labor leaders like classified documents in the CIA's Mafia room.

It will be mighty difficult for President Ford --and his Domestic Council account executive Vice President Nelson Rockefeller (personal friend of many of the demonstration leaders)--to resist damands to pour out billions for "Jobs Now" in the public as well as private sector.

In all, it's a revolutionary twist in traditional labor action.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Russians Sought to Salvage Lost Top-Secret U.S. Torpedo

By JACK ANDERSON with Less Whitten

WASHINGTON--Deep in the ocean off the Bahamas, the Navy four years ago lost a superscret Mark 48 torpedo that the Soviets were eager to get their hands on.

The circumstances were reminiscent of the crisis the Soviets had faced in 1968 when one of their subs sank in the Pacific with secret equipment aboard. Last summer, the Central Intelligence Agency recovered part of the sub but lost the section that contained the secret equipment.

Navy sources now say the 18-year-old Soviet sub was obsolete and had little intelligence value. But this was not true of the missing Mark 48, which had been built by hand for sea trials under the tighest security.

At a cost of $1 million apiece, the torpedos were designed to track and strike enemy ships with lethal accuracy. They could be fired from U.S. submarines and destroyers far away from the target ship.

But in the early tests, some Mark 48s purred so luloudly that the sound threw the sensitive tracking mechanism out of whack. Others suddenly plunged into a dive or swerved off the designated path.

The Soviets, apparently, aware of the wayward wanderings of these early sophisticated Mark 48s, dispatched trawler spy ships to the Bahamas test area. They tried to monitor the tests and, if possible, to snare one of the top-secret torpedos.

The capture of a Mark 48, of course, would have advanced the Soviet torpedo technology by years and would have taught them what countermeasures to use against America's deadly undersea weapon.

Then one day, as the Navy nervously watched the Soviet intelligence ships in the vicinity, a Mark 48 nose-dived to the bottom. It settled in an ocean hold about 6,000 feet below the surface and there was no way to self-destruct it.

News of the loss was secretly flashed to the Pentagon and the top brass held urgent meetings to decide what to do. We got an inkling of what had happened and reported on May25, 1971, that a Mark 48 had "got away" and that it had thrown the Navy into "a panic." We quoted a Navy source as confiding to us: "We were afraid a Russian sub would get the thing."

Now we have dug out the rest of the story, which the Navy has suppressed for four years. The Pentagon brass anxiously discussed how to keep the Soviets from retrieving the misfired Mark 48. "We were in a stew," a Pentagon official now recalls.

It was first proposed that an attempt be made to recover the precious torpedo, much as the CIA tried last summer to bring up the lost Soviet sub. But oceanographic and salvage experts, who were brought into the secret meetings, questioned whether recovery would be possible in water more than a mile deep.

In the end, the experts agreed to abaondon the Mark 48 on theocean bottom. "We studied the way we'd made the fish and figured it would implode," explained a participant in the secret meetings. "We decided it would cave in on itself becaue the pressures were so great down there. Even if the Russkies got it, they would've wound up with no more than a lot of very expensive scrap metal."

PUERTO RICAN SMUGGLING: A confidential House study names Puerto Rico as the "hot spot" in the booming South American drug trade. An estimated 80 per cent of the heroin, hashish and cocaine smuggled into the ragged coves ofPuerto Rico is now reaching the continental United States.

Yet the Drug Enforcement Agency has only eight full-time agents assigned to cover Puerto Rico. An additional 300 Puerto Rican narcotics officers have such poor liaison with federal authorities that a top Puerto Rican official complained: "We get the same requests from different (federal) agencies which appear to be unaware of each other's activities."

These are the findings of House Coast Guard Chairman John Murphy, D.-N.Y., who has submitted a confidential report to the parent Merchant Marine an-Fisheries Committee.

Much of the deadly narcotics are smuggled out of Colombia to a nearly deserted island off the Puerto Rican coast known as "Isla Caja de Muertas" but called "Coffin Island" by narcotics agents. Swift motor boats haul the drugs to secret landing spots on the Puerto Rican coastline. Since Puerto Rico is U.S. territory, they can be smuggled to the mainland without customs examination.

So short-handed are drug enforcement officers that they had to stand by helplessly while a boat, loaded with narcotics, recently slipped ashore and unloaded its deadly cargo.

The confidential Murphy report presents a vivid picture of the terror and bloodshed that the narcotics trade has brought to the once peaceful island of Puerto Rico.

"The drug traffic is so intense in Puerto Rico," states the Murphy report, "that during the first week in January 1975, of the dozen homicides listed in San Juan ... half were linked to warring factions of organized gangs dealing in the multimillion-dollar drug business."

Murphy reported there were 17 narcotics enforcement officers killed in Puerto Rico in 1974. One high official arrested two traffickers and "some rocks (were) thrown on the roof of his home in evening, and he opened his front door to investigate. As he looked up toward the roof, a shotgun was put under his chin and his head was blown into the driveway."

Ohio State Rep. John A. Galbraith plans to introduce legislation to allow liquor stores and bars in the state to operate normally on election day. At present, bars may open for business but can sell only low-powered beer.

The law was passed to try to keep unscrupulous politicians from buying votes with drinks. "I think we have now advanced beyond that," says Galbraith.

Cynics would agree.These days the problem is not politicians buying votes but the other way around.

A man who had just been promoted to vice-president boasted so muchy about it to his wife that she finally retorted: "Vice-presidents are a dime a dozen. Why, in the supermarket they even have a vice-president in charge of prunes."

Furious, the husband phoned the supermarket in the expectation of refuting his wife. He asked to speak to the vice-president in charge of prunes.

"Which kind? " was the reply. "Packaged or bulk?"

There is little doubt that we are becoming highly specialized in almost every field of human endeavor. It is one of our strengths. Unfortunately, it's also one of our weaknesses.

The man who devotes his entire time and effort to one particular kind of problem develops special skills and knowledge which make him an expert in that particular area. Without exposure to other concerns, however, he may also develop "tunnel vision." Tunnel vision, says the Wall Street Journal, prevents executives from seeing beyond the special problems of their own departments. It results in a "narrow, one-sided , inflexible view."

It's a common ailment - even among otherwise competent leaders. Most managers or supervisors get their start, of necessity, in one specialty or another. The tendency - at the bottom of the ladder - is for people to know more and more about less and less. Unfortdunately, the more knowledgeable some individuals become in their own work, the more all-important it becomes, in their way of thinking, and less sensitive they are to the viewpoints of people in other departments.

How does a manager widen his own viewpoint and that of the people under him? The best way is by recognizing the dangers of "tunnel vision" and fighting against it from the very start. He uses every possible contact to broaden his point of view and to understand the problems of the other departments and the business as a whole.

He doesn't build a fence around his department. He makes an effort to understand the jobs of other executives and what their departments are trying to accomplish.

He doesn't automatically take issue with everything they say, and act as if their work is in competition with his own. Nor does he respond in kind when the other fellow does something shortsighted.

He also makes a real effort to see where his activity fits in the overall picture. He knows that many problems cut across organization lines - what's best for his section or department may not always be what's best for the company as a whole. He appreciates the difference between a department and company point of view.

You'll seldom find him mistaking his corner of the office for the whole building.

STILL ON SHORT RATIONS

U. S. railroads have been doing a record freight hauling job -- including the movement of heavy grain shipments for export. A natural assumption would be that rail earnings should go up along with increased traffic. Earnings have, in fact, risen -- marginally. But the principal thing rail earnings reports show is the continuing urgency of a new national policy toward the nation's railroads -- a policy that will encourage the initiative of private enterprise.

Operating revenues of the rails set an all-time high of $13.4 billion in 1972. But, for the sixth straight year, the industry's rate of return on net investment remained below 3 percent. An industry report states that U.S. railroads have "... not reached a 3 per cent rate since 1966, and this would be only half the level the Interstate Commerce Commission has said the railroads must reach if they are to keep up with present and future demands." Measured by the cold statistics of earnings, the manner in which he rails have handled soaring transportation demands is all the more remarkable. They have vastly improved the capacity and operating efficiency of the freight car fleet. They have pushed ahead with technological improvements that make the huge grain hauling job they must now accomplish less disruptive of the nation's freight movement than it would otherwise be.

Instead of kicking at their performance, it is time to visualize what our railroads could accomplish if they were granted the rate of return which the government's top regulatory agency has said they shouldhave if they are to achieve what the country expects of them.

TIME FOR PUBLIC REJECTION

Union organization in such an industry as construction is essential in giving the individual workingman the clout to bargain with his employer for safe working conditions and adequate levelsof pay. But violence and lawbreaking, destruction of property and physical intimidation have no rightful place in the actions of building trades unions. Yet such actions, instigated by criminal elements, are common.

Mr. Charles Stevenson reports on some of these actions in the July Reader's Digest. He writes, "Squeezed by skyrocketing construction costs, wage increases, work slowdowns, featherbedding, jurisdictional disputes and outright corruption, builders in search of a full day's work for a full day's pay are increasingly turning from closed union shops to open, independent shops." Some unions within the building trades, instead of seeking to make their service competitive, have resorted to brutal guerrilla warfare to stop those jobs that hire anyone but their own members. Mr. Stevenson cites many cases. In one instance, 1,000 men were transported to a $15-million hotel and office complex building site. Breaking through protecting fences, they wreaked destruction on the building site for 45 minutes to the tune of $300,000. According to Mr. Stevenson, the destruction was halted at a prearranged signal, sandwiches and soft drinks were passed out, and "Although state troopers finally arrived in force, not one arrest was made."

The Digest article calls for federal legislation to stop such terrorism where it exists and local law enforcement agencies and countys do not, for whatever reason, take effective counteraction.A situation such as described here should arouse the ire of every law-abiding person in the nation.

SAFEGUARDING THE SEAS

Control of pollution of the oceans presents a unique problem. It depends upon the initiative and good faith of the maritime industries of many nations. A striking demonstration of leadership in accepting this obligation has been given by the U.S. shipping industry.

The president of the American Instutute of Merchant Shipping testified that his organization, whose membership operates two thirds of the ships in the active U.S. Merchant Marine, gives complete support to both the Convention providing a clean-up fund and the Civil Liability Convention it is designed to supplement. He added, "By ratifying these two Conventions, the United States can provice the opportunity for its citizens and government to collect for oil pollution damages even when oil is spilled from a vessel registered in a non-Contracting (participating) State and pollution is caused on our land or in our territorial seas. The Fund may be tapped by victims in the case of a vessel which would not otherwise come under U.S. jurisdiction because it is traveling between two foreign countries..."The maritime spokesman's statement included these signigficant words, "The shipping industry is doing its best to prevent accidents of the the type that would bring the Conventions into play. Our support for the proposals is intended as an admission that perfection is not possible and as evidence that we aim to meet our responsibility to protect the environment."

Behind the somewhat technical language lies the obvious determination of the U.S. maritime industry to use every available resource in the preservation of the marine environment. For its part, the public should, in fairness, remember that in maritime pollution control as in any other endeavor, "perfection is not possible"--and make due allowances for this unchangeable fact of life.

HEART OF TRASPORTATION

To a country that, from the day of its founding, has partaken generously even profligately of the natural endowments granted it by nature, entering an era of restraint comes hard and is frequently accompanied by curious contradictions. On the one hand, people are urged to turn off lights and TV sets when leaving a room. Land is becoming scarcer in relation to people. Yet, often there is inertia when it comes to adopting logical measures for making the most of some of our most obvious assets. America's railroads are one of these assets. A string of cars running on steel rails is one of the most efficient movers of goods ever invented. Despite this fact, public inertia at the legislative level has jeopardized the life of U.S. railroads which remain a key to where and how millions of us will live in the future.

The Department of Transportation predicts that the nation's overall freight loads will double by 1985. Contemplation of today's congested highways, together with land and environmental problems, envelopes this prediction in formidable question marks.The railroads now haul about 40 percent of the total load, and their share could increase in view of greater attention being given to ecological and fuel considerations. Railroads move more than three times as much freight per gallon of fuel as big trucks. They pollute the air far less than trucks carrying the same load. And studies indicate that by pursuing present trends toward bigger equipment, more modern facilities and faster operations, railroads can increase their capacity seven times over without requiring more land for rights-of-way.

In this opening era of greater consciousness of the necessity of making the most of what we have, how much longer can the public, the lawmakers and our so-called transortation experts continue to treat the railroads as an appendage rather than the heart of America's surface transportation system?

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Russians Sought to Salvage Lost Top-Secret U.S. Torpedo

By JACK ANDERSON with Less Whitten

WASHINGTON--Deep in the ocean off the Bahamas, the Navy four years ago lost a superscret Mark 48 torpedo that the Soviets were eager to get their hands on.

The circumstances were reminiscent of the crisis the Soviets had faced in 1968 when one of their subs sank in the Pacific with secret equipment aboard. Last summer, the Central Intelligence Agency recovered part of the sub but lost the section that contained the secret equipment.

Navy sources now say the 18-year-old Soviet sub was obsolete and had little intelligence value. But this was not true of the missing Mark 48, which had been built by hand for sea trials under the tighest security.

At a cost of $1 million apiece, the torpedos were designed to track and strike enemy ships with lethal accuracy. They could be fired from U.S. submarines and destroyers far away from the target ship.

But in the early tests, some Mark 48s purred so luloudly that the sound threw the sensitive tracking mechanism out of whack. Others suddenly plunged into a dive or swerved off the designated path.

The Soviets, apparently, aware of the wayward wanderings of these early sophisticated Mark 48s, dispatched trawler spy ships to the Bahamas test area. They tried to monitor the tests and, if possible, to snare one of the top-secret torpedos.

The capture of a Mark 48, of course, would have advanced the Soviet torpedo technology by years and would have taught them what countermeasures to use against America's deadly undersea weapon.

Then one day, as the Navy nervously watched the Soviet intelligence ships in the vicinity, a Mark 48 nose-dived to the bottom. It settled in an ocean hold about 6,000 feet below the surface and there was no way to self-destruct it.

News of the loss was secretly flashed to the Pentagon and the top brass held urgent meetings to decide what to do. We got an inkling of what had happened and reported on May25, 1971, that a Mark 48 had "got away" and that it had thrown the Navy into "a panic." We quoted a Navy source as confiding to us: "We were afraid a Russian sub would get the thing."

Now we have dug out the rest of the story, which the Navy has suppressed for four years. The Pentagon brass anxiously discussed how to keep the Soviets from retrieving the misfired Mark 48. "We were in a stew," a Pentagon official now recalls.

It was first proposed that an attempt be made to recover the precious torpedo, much as the CIA tried last summer to bring up the lost Soviet sub. But oceanographic and salvage experts, who were brought into the secret meetings, questioned whether recovery would be possible in water more than a mile deep.

In the end, the experts agreed to abaondon the Mark 48 on theocean bottom. "We studied the way we'd made the fish and figured it would implode," explained a participant in the secret meetings. "We decided it would cav e in on itself becaue the pressures were so great down there. Even if the Russkies got it, they would've wound up with no more than a lot of very expensive scrap metal."

PUERTO RICAN SMUGGLING: A confidential House study names Puerto Rico as the "hot spot" in the booming South American drug trade. An estimated 80 per cent of the heroin, hashish and cocaine smuggled into the ragged coves ofPuerto Rico is now reaching the continental United States.

Yet the Drug Enforcement Agency has only eight full-time agents assigned to cover Puerto Rico. An additional 300 Puerto Rican narcotics officers have such poor liaison with federal authorities that a top Puerto Rican official complained: "We get the same requests from different (federal) agencies which appear to be unaware of each other's activities."

These are the findings of House Coast Guard Chairman John Murphy, D.-N.Y., who has submitted a confidential report to the parent Merchant Marine an- Fisheries Committee.

Much of the deadly narcotics are smuggled out of Colombia to a nearly deserted island off the Puerto Rican coast known as "Isla Caja de Muertas" but called "Coffin Island" by narcotics agents. Swift motor boats haul the drugs to secret landing spots on the Puerto Rican coastline. Since Puerto Rico is U.S. territory, they can be smuggled to the mainland without customs examination.

So short-handed are drug enforcement officers that they had to stand by helplessly while a boat, loaded with narcotics, recently slipped ashore and unloaded its deadly cargo.

The confidential Murphy report presents a vivid picture of the terror and bloodshed that the narcotics trade has brought to the once peaceful island of Puerto Rico.

"The drug traffic is so intense in Puerto Rico," states the Murphy report, "that during the first week in January 1975, of the dozen homicides listed in San Juan ... half were linked to warring factions of organized gangs dealing in the multimillion-dollar drug business."

Murphy reported there were 17 narcotics enforcement officers killed in Puerto Rico in 1974. One high official arrested two traffickers and "some rocks (were) thrown on the roof of his home in evening, and he opened his front door to investigate. As he looked up toward the roof, a shotgun was put under his chin and his head was blown into the driveway."

Inside Labor

Pouring On the Heat: Massive Labor Demonstration Chiefs Tell All
539 Congressmen To Come Out and Heed

WASHINGTON--Now it's the whole Congress--every single member of the Senate and House--which is being put on the spot by America's most powerful labor leaders. It will be a big spot. In fact an entire section of the J.F. Kennedy Stadium reserved for 600 lawmakers and some of their aides.

Each will receive a special invitation to come and listen on Saturday, April 26. They'll hear plenty. Sharp attacks on President Ford. Demands for the resignation of the outspoken Secretary of the Treasury William Simon. Outcries for the boiling, in scarce oil, of Federal Reserve Board chairman Arthur Burns. Expenditures of some $40 billion for "Jobs Now."

The special invitations simply will ask the Congressmen to come to a stadium filled with protesting AFL-CIO members, jobless and working.

From all over the East the AFL-CIO's Industrial Union Department (I.U.D.), chaired by steelworkers chief I.W. (Abe) Abel, will call in scores of thousands of protestors.

They are scheduled to gather at special central points--and then "March on Washington," meaning the big stadium which can squeeze in some 60,000 people.

The spotlight will be on the special congressional section as well as the speakers platform. "And we'll know who comes and who doesn't," said one of the demonstration's organizers, "and we'll not forget when election time rolls around."

Now, this is no ordinary march, parade or demonstration. It is the first such workers concentration called officially by the AFL-CIO, albeit in the name of Abel's IUD. Labor chief George Meany never is one for mass protests. He is known to believe you can get more by going in the back of the White House than by protesting in front of it.

But the pressure from the field has been enormus. In some cites big crowds seeking public jobs have smashed through doors or actually heavily damaged official buildings. In at least two states there have been threats of public workers' strikes which would paralyze them.

Already there have been demonstrations in front of state capitals.

Union leaders in several cites planned marches on Washington. Significance here is that none of these are the way-out leftists, or "crazies and kooks."

Planners of the April 26 concentration are the national labor leaders. They want it "inside," meaning the stadium, so it can be handled and the revolutionary sects which string along like political campfollowers won't be able to provoke stampedes or running battles as once they did during the anti-war demonstrations.

No one really knows just how many will bus in or roll in by train, auto and truck. Some expect over 100,000. Some look to pack the stadium with some 58,000 despite the space reserved for the 439 House members and 100 Sentors.

It will have the effect of an old-fashioned labor rally during the depression '30s. Calls for mass action. Calls for similar demonstrations in a hundred other cities. Demands for immediate job-making programs regardless of cost.

Actually no one really knows the total of what's to be called for. Sounds like $40 billion--some $11 billion in congressional bills calling for state and local matching funds; calls for the release of $19 billion for construction, impounded since the Nixon days; calls for extended, even permanent unemployment insurance at a rate of 75 per cent of past wages, and lots more.

And they mean it. Further, the labor people have a political and lobbying machine on the Hill to fight for it.

All in all, it will be a bad fortnight for President Ford. On April 18, he's now scheduled to run one of his domestic problems barnstorming meetings in Concord, N.H.--just about a year from the primaries.

Yet, probably on April 21, the Building and Construction Trades Department (AFL-CIO) will bring some 7,500 of its leaders into Washington for a job rally. Then they'll fan out and lobby the Hill. They'll try to see the President.

Some construction leaders, such as the sheetmetal workers' Ed Carlough, will keep their people over for mini demonstrations. Protesters will begin drifting in for the big one on the following Saturday when Mr. Ford's program will be shredded by labor leaders like classified documents in the CIA's Mafia room.

It will be mighty difficult for President Ford --and his Domestic Council account executive Vice President Nelson Rockefeller (personal friend of many of the demonstration leaders)--to resist damands to pour out billions for "Jobs Now" in the public as well as private sector.

In all, it's a revolutionary twist in traditional labor action.

The 1975 Okeechobee District Scout-O-Rama held Saturday at the Kingsway Plaza Mall was a big success , David Corti, district executive, said today. Over 500 Cubs and Scouts from Sikeston and surrounding communities participated in the day's activities.

The day's activities began with a parade from the Post Office, proceeding through town to the mall. The parade included emergency vehicles from the Sikeston Fire Company and from the ambulance service.

Troop 144 of Oran, under the direction of Gene Hanselman, officially opened activities at the Mall.

Over 20 units presented 27 display booths in the mall, highlighted by a silk screening booth by troop 37 of East Prairie, under the direction of Scoutmaster Mike Euer.

OPther booths on display included such varied fields as first aid and artificial respiration by troop 41 of Sikeston, "The Guessing Game" by troop 33 of Charleston, camping by troop 144 of Oran, and coin collecting by troop 49 of Morehouse. Ribbons were awarded to every unit that presented a display.

The annual Pinewood Derby, under the direction of Ed Hill of East Prairie was held during the afternoon. Over 75 cars were entered in the event.

Every boy participating in the Scout-O-Rama will receive a special Scout-O-Rama neckerchief slide. In addition, boys received awards for the amount of money they collected through ticket donations. The top-selling Cub den and the top selling troop received special Cameras. The winning den was from Pack 47 of New Madrid and the winning troop was troop 144 of Oran, with Gene Hanselman accepting the award for the second consecutive year.

The day's activities were organized by co-chairman Fred French and Mike Kilgore and coordinated in the mall by Mike Euer, program coordinator.

In America, people doing imitations say "bow-wow," but in France they say "wah-wah," in Spain they say "goo-wow" and in Russian they howl "how-how."

What's the law?

The case of the ever-loving 1st wife

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

As evidence that love can find a way ... out, Mrs. William Van Dinkle divorced her husband as soon as the flame began to flicker. And, while the divorce never hit the newspapers, it didn't make the telephone books either.

After the break-up, her name remained listed as "Mrs. William Van Dinkle." What's more, when her ex-husband remarried, his new wife found the listing, to say the least, very disconcerting.

Consequently, her erstwhile spouse started an action to comple her to stop using the name "Mrs. William Van Dinkle" in the telephone direcory.

"You can't have two women using my name in the listings," he complained to a judge. "It's not only confusing to me, it's confusing to the public."

"Then let his new wife change her name," responded the former Mrs. Van Dinkle. "As for me, while I might have stopped loving my husband, I never stopped loving his name. And there's no reason I have to stop using it."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you compel the first wife to stop using her former husband's name in the telephone directory?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that an injunction can be obtained only when an applicant alleges and proves that irreparable damage will result if it is not issued. The mere fact that a woman continues to use her married name after being divorced, concluded the Judge, is no evidence that irreparable injury will result.

(Based upon a 1972 Louisiana Court of Appeals Decision.)

Grade school enrollment set

MORLEY — Pre-enrollment for the fall term at Scott County Central Elementary School will be held from 8:15 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. each school day between April 7 and 18, Gene R. Statler, elementary principal, has announced.

To enroll for kindergarten, a child must be 5 years old before Oct. 1, and to enroll for first grade, a child must be 6 years old before Oct. 1. In both cases a birth certificate and an immunization record will be needed at the time of enrollment.

"Since the kindergarten is half-day, please make an all-out effort to enroll your child so bus routes can be established," Statler said.

The National Automobile Club says proper care of your car's battery can eliminate many unpleasant incidents.

The top-selling Cub den and the top selling troop received special Cameras. The winning den was from Pack 47 of New Madrid and the winning troop was troop 144 of Oran, with Gene Hanselman accepting the award for the second consecutive year.

The day's activities were organized by co-chairman Fred French and Mike Kilgore and coordinated in the mall by Mike Euer, program coordinator.

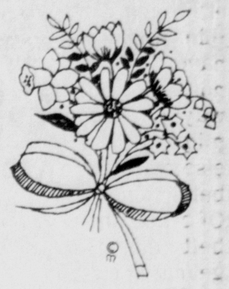

In America, people doing imitations say "bow-wow," but in France they say "wah-wah," in Spain they say "goo-wow" and in Russian they howl "how-how."

What's the law?

The case of the ever-loving 1st wife

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

As evidence that love can find a way ... out, Mrs. William Van Dinkle divorced her husband as soon as the flame began to flicker. And, while the divorce never hit the newspapers, it didn't make the telephone books either.

After the break-up, her name remained listed as "Mrs. William Van Dinkle." What's more, when her ex-husband remarried, his new wife found the listing, to say the least, very disconcerting.

Consequently, her erstwhile spouse started an action to comple her to stop using the name "Mrs. William Van Dinkle" in the telephone direcory.

"You can't have two women using my name in the listings," he complained to a judge. "It's not only confusing to me, it's confusing to the public."

"Then let his new wife change her name," responded the former Mrs. Van Dinkle. "As for me, while I might have stopped loving my husband, I never stopped loving his name. And there's no reason I have to stop using it."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you compel the first wife to stop using her former husband's name in the telephone directory?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that an injunction can be obtained only when an applicant alleges and proves that irreparable damage will result if it is not issued. The mere fact that a woman continues to use her married name after being divorced, concluded the Judge, is no evidence that irreparable injury will result.

(Based upon a 1972 Louisiana Court of Appeals Decision.)

Grade school enrollment set

MORLEY — Pre-enrollment for the fall term at Scott County Central Elementary School will be held from 8:15 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. each school day between April 7 and 18, Gene R. Statler, elementary principal, has announced.

To enroll for kindergarten, a child must be 5 years old before Oct. 1, and to enroll for first grade, a child must be 6 years old before Oct. 1. In both cases a birth certificate and an immunization record will be needed at the time of enrollment.

"Since the kindergarten is half-day, please make an all-out effort to enroll your child so bus routes can be established," Statler said.

The National Automobile Club says proper care of your car's battery can eliminate many unpleasant incidents.

Ann Landers

Large overdose of vitamins can harm children's health

Dear Ann Landers: Please check with your authorities and tell me if a poodle can be gay. Our male Standard poodle is a prize-winning specimen and we have had many offers to mate him with other female Standards of similar quality. But he refuses to have anything to do with the bitches. He does, however, get very chummy with male dogs.

There was a time when we laughed about it but we no longer think it is funny. Now we believe he's a homosexual. Is this possible? May we hear from you soon?--Manhatroject

Dear Man: I questioned some of the best veterinarieans in the country. Two said "yes." Two said "no." One replied, "It's possible, but not likely." Another laughed for ten minutes and said, "You've got me."

Dear Ann Landers: My daughter-in-law and I get along beautifully and I don't want to spoil our relationship, but perhaps I ought to say something because the health of my grandchildren might be in danger.

Marylou is very big on vitamins, expecially the iron-fortified kind. She keeps two large bottles of vitamns (A and D) on the kitchen table and the children (ages 5 to 11) help themselves. These pills are flavored and colored. Some are shaped like cartoon characters.

Perhaps I'm old-fashioned but I don't believe children who have a balanced diet need vitamins. Also I've heard of children who died after taking an "overdose" of vitamins. They thought it was candy. What do you know about this? --Uneasy In Lancaster

Dear Uneasy: Very little--but my good friend, Dr. Jay Arena of Duke University, is one of the world's foremost authorities on accidental child poisoning. He agrees that children who have a balanced diet have no need for vitamins after the first three years of their lives.

Dr. Arena warns against allowing children to help themselves to vitamins. He says a large overdose of Vitamin A or D can cause irritability, poor appetite, vomiting, diarrhea, weight loss, fatigue--and even shock and coma.

Don't TELL your daughter-in-law anything. Just hand her this column.

Dear Ann Landers: I was amused by the back-and-forth hassling between women who preferred to be entertained in the living room versus those who didn't mind being ushered to the baement "recreation room." What nonsense!

Don't these women realize they are lucky to be asked at all? My husband is such a blabbermouth we haven't been invited to anyone's home in two years. I'd settle for an evening in a cow-shed.

You can't imagine what it's like to be married to a man who knows everything, argues people into the ground, uses terrible language and spoils every relationship because of his big mouth. I wrote to you three years ago and you said, "Se e your women friends in the afternoon and do your socializing alone." So that's what I've been dong. But the evenings can be awfully boring, listening to Mr. Know-It-All snore in front of the TV. Sign me--Typhoid Mary

Dear Mary: My sympathies go out to you--and to others in the same boat. Too bad the blabbermouths didn't marry each other. And have you noticed that they seldom do?

There is a big difference between cold and cool. Ann Landers shows you how to play it cool without freezing people out in her booklet, "Teenage Sex--Ten Ways to Cool It." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120.

New officers elected

Tau Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority installed new officers for 1975 at a March 11 meeting in the Security Federal Savings & Loan Association community room. From left are Mrs. E. A. Hanks, recording secretary, Mrs. Gary Lathum, vice president, Mrs. Robert Propst, corresponding secretary, Mrs. Arnold Myers, president, Mrs. Allen Crites, city council representative, Mrs. Ronald Lee, treasurer, and Mrs. Calvin Owen, alternate city council representative, Not pictured is Mrs. Guy Comer, director.

Girl Scout troops honor local club

Two Girl Scout Cadette Troops 22 and 79 were guests of the Woman's Civic Club at a March 4 meeting in the Hunter Memorial Presbyterian Church.

The troops honored the following club members for their past leadership activity in the Girl Scout organization. Those were: Mrs. Robert Hope, Mrs. Cline Ables, Mrs. Ewart Taylor, Mrs. Charles Conn, Mrs. Kermit Bird, Mrs. Merle Canedy, Mrs. B. J. Murback, Mrs. L. M. Standley, Mrs. Maurice Stauffer and Mrs. Margaret Cain.

In addition, the women received red carnations while other members were given pastel carnations in appreciation for their sponsorship of the troops.

In business action, Mrs. Roy Marks, president, appointed a nominating committee of Mrs. M. Cain, chairman, Mrs. Scott Waters, Mr. Kermit Bird and Mrs. Robert Hope. Tickets were distributed for the bus trip to Memphis, Tenn., April 10th.

Barbecue pizza snaps with flavor

Want to try a quick 'n easy, yet economical pizza? Our barbecue pizza is created with ordinary kitchen-shelf items, yet adds a distinctly new dimension to pizza flavor.

Although a new version of the traditional dish, Barbecue Pizza is table-ready in minutes, crust and all.

Just roll or press out with your hands a can of the buttermilk refrigerator biscuit dough for the crust. No need to wait for the time-cinsuming yeast crust.

Unique flavor is produced when the barbecue sauce is poured over the biscuits for the base. Quckly brown the ground beef and toss in the spices; spread evenly over the barbecue base. Top with mushrooms and cheese. Just a few minutes browning in the oven and it is ready for serving.

New flavors combined with a quick and convenient recipe cuts short on time -- not nutrition. The buttermilk refrigerator biscuits are made with "enriched" flour. Enriched means the essential B-vitamins — thiamine, niacin and riboflavin — plus the mineral and iron have been added — all essential for good health.

BARBECUE PIZZA

(one 12-inch pizza or five 6-inch individuals)

1 package (10 ounce) enriched buttermilk refrigerator biscuits
½ pound ground beef
1 tsp. oregano, cuushed
½ tsp. garlic salt
½ cup barbecue sauce
1 can (4 ounce) mushroom stems and pieces, drained, optional
1 cup (4 ounce) shredded Mozzarella cheese

Flatten biscuits with palms of hands. Place on ungreased 12-inch pizza pan. Press together so entire bottom is covered. Brown ground beef, stir in oregano and garlic salt. Spread barbecue sauce over dough; sprinkle meat evenly over sauce. Top pizza with mushrooms and cheese. Bake in preheated 400 degree oven 12 to 15 minutes or until crust is brown.

NOTE: For five individual pizzas press together two biscuits and flatten into circles. Place in individual pizza pans or place individually on baking sheets. Proceed as above.

Bargaining bill heads agenda

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Consideration of a controversial public employes bargaining bill, delayed last week due to some procedureal debate, is at the top of the agenda when the Missouri House returns to work today.

The Senate began its spring vacation last Thursday and will resume work for the second half of this year's session April 1. The House will begin its break Wednesday and return a week after the Senate.

The collective bargaining measure, which contains a no-strike clause, would allow all public workers to form unions except highway patrolmen, deputy sheriffs and members of the Missouri National Guard.

Contractual agreements between public bodies and their workers could not violate federal, state or local laws and regulations. While the bill, sponsored by Rep. Daniel O'Toole, D-Florissant, would not require workers to join a bargaining unit, it would allow those who are members to require nonmembers to pay the equivalent of union dues to maintain bargaining operations.

That agency shop provision has drawn extreme criticism from right-to-work groups and the state Chamber of Commerce, which claim it violates individual rights and would give unions too much economic power.

Discussion of several proposed Constitutional Amendments could also occur this week. One calls for diversion of 10 per cent of the state gasoline tax to fund mass transit systems around the state.

That proposal, while aimed at helping the urban areas of the state, is expected to face strong opposition. Similar measures have failed in the past, and if this one is approved by both houses, it would have to gain a favorable vote of the public before going into effect.

Several other proposals have been introduced this year to fund mass transit systems, including other measures to divert part of the fuel tax as well as fuel, cigarette and sales tax hikes with revenues to be used for mass transit.

Another proposal, subject to voter approval if passed by the legislature, would create a nine-member constitutional board to review and authorize changes in salaries and pensions for legislators, and other state officials and members of the judicial branch.

Proposed changes in pay schedules, however, would be subject to veto on a one-third vote of both houses of the General Assembly.

Eagleton says propane users may get refund

WASHINGTON (AP) — Propane users in Missouri could receive refunds of more than $2.3 million as a result of a federal investigation into illegal price-gouging, Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., said today.

Eagleton said the figure was a minimum estimate by the Federal Energy Administration and the total could be much higher when the investigation is complete.

The federal probe, which has already led to refunds of $79 million nationwide, was initiated early last year after complaints of widespread blackmarket activities and profiteering in the sale of propane. The FEA will not identify individual propane dealers at this time, Eagleton said, nor will it estimate how many customers could expect to receive rebates.

According to Eagleton, the refunds will be either cash payments to customers who were overcharged or general price rollbacks for future purchases by those customers.

FISHING TOURNAMENT

A new special flyrod tournament series has been announced by the Bass Anglers Sportsman Society, headquartered in Montgomery, Ala. The B.A.S.S. organization sponsors pro bass fishinging's tournament trial and the Bass Masters classic world finals.

A one-day tournament for flyrod bass fishing is scheduled prior to the Arkanasas Inviational at Bull Shoals Lake, March 29.

The flyrod-only competition will be similar to regular pro BASS tournaments. Only artificial lures can be fished and must be cast with conventional flyrod equipment. A "Bonus" ounce will be awarded for live fish weighed-in. The Arkansas tournament will have a ten-ball limit, and fish will be released.

"Flyrods aren't permitted in regular bass competition because a majority ofcontestants fish with only casting or spinning gear," Harold Sharp, BASS tournament director, said. "Until recently, there hasn't been enough interest among flyrod anglers to include a special flyrod-only division."

Sharp said some 45 to 50 fishermen are expected for the first BASS long rod and bug flippin' contest. "Fly rod fishing has been lost in the shuffle with today's modern bass methods, but many oldtimrs feel it is the true test of a bass fisherman's angling skills," Sharp added.

Bull Shoals, a famous lake on the White River, is expected to be an excellent arena to spotlight the flyrod and bass buggers. The old impoundment has experienced back-to-back super spawns of black bass. Predictably the largemouth will be moving into shallow water and within the bug fishermen's range.

Some $7,500 in cash and awards and qualifying points for the 1975 BASS Masters Classic will be divided among the top 15 flyrod finishers. First prize is $1,400 cash with the runnerup netting $700.

The top point scorers from the 1975 BASS tournament trail will compete in October in the $15,000 winner take-all classic. The hook-and-line world finals is held on a "mystery lake" that remains a secret until the contestants are enroute.

Tournament headquarters for the Arkansas BASS events will be the Bull Shoals Lake Boat Dock, For additional information, contact: BASS Tournaments, P.O. Box 3044, Montgomery, Ala. 36109, or call (205) 272-9530.

MINOR LEAGUE ERPORT

The Daily Standard will provide its readers with weekly reports on Southeast Missouri athletes competing in minor league baseball this season, marking the fifth straight year for the exclusive reports from Player Periscope of Novato, Calif.

Heading the list of SEMO diamond standouts are pitchers Mark Littell of Gideon, Galen McSpadden of Puxico and Arbyrd's Randy Smith. The other player signed to a minor league contract is Steve Coulson of Fisk, an infielder.

All four of these Bootheel athletes reportedly have good chances of making the major league roster of their respective club.

I GOT HER

It's official! This scribe has finally caught that blonde-blue eyed beauty that he mentioned earlier in his column. She's Mrs. Betty Lee Jaynes now!

I not only got the woman of my life, but I also got a step son named Timmy. He'll be five in April.

Betty, who is very sports minded and an avid fan, obtained a pair of athletic minded step daughters--Ronda turned 10 last week and Ramona is six.

The new Mrs. Jaynes is a secretary for the firm of Dempster & Yokley &Fuchs.

I am, to say the least--very,very, very happy!

Princeton NIT Champ

NEW YORK (AP) — You don't have to be great to play basketball for Princeton—only smart.

The flawless Tigers proved Sunday that brains were far better than brawn while winning the 38th National Invitation Tournament at Madison Square Garden.

"This team is smart and courageous and how can you beat brains and courage?" Princeton Coach Pete Carril noted with smug satisfaction after his "textbook" Tigers whipped the Providence Friars 80-69 in the title game.

To be sure, Sunday's victory was a clinic in basketball—as were Princeton's first three victories in the tournament.

When Providence went into a full-court press in the first half, the Tigers broke it by running with the ball. When Providence went into a zone defense in the second half, Princeton killed it by sitting on the ball.

The Tigers became the first Ivy League team in history to win the NIT—and they did it with stunning impact. Rarely has one team done so much with so little in a season.

"I don't remember the odds ever being so big against a team I've coached," said Carril. "We lost our first-string center early in the season and we were down to 10 men, seven of them guards.

"In this tournament we were in a rough bracket. We have no advantages. We don't give basketball scholarships."

We need help

Results of Saturday's district qualifying track met held at the high school school field house, were unavailable to the Daily Standard sports staff this morning.

Parents and readers often blame the reporters for not having the results in the paper, but we must rely upon the coaches' cooperation. In this case, three phone calls to the school before our 9:30 a.m. deadline, failed to get a response.

The Daily Standard sports 'hot lines', where athletic events can be reported to the newspaper, are open from 6 p.m. until 10 p.m. nightly, except Saturday and Sunday. The lines are open on Sunday afternoon from 3 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. We urge all coaches and individuals to report their activity during this time period.

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina basketball Coach Dean Smith said Sunday he expects to be named basketball coach of the 1976 U.S. Olympic team. He said Sunday he has been approved by the Olympic Basketball Committee and needs approval only from the U.S. Olympic Committee. His Tar Heals were upset by Syracuse Thursday night in the NCAA East Regionals.

During the last 14 years at Chapel Hill Smith has compiled a 290-104 record.

FISHING TOURNAMENT

A new special flyrod tournament series has been announced by the Bass Anglers Sportsman Society, headquartered in Montgomery, Ala. The B.A.S.S. organization sponsors pro bass fishinging's tournament trial and the Bass Masters classic world finals.

A one-day tournament for flyrod bass fishing is scheduled prior to the Arkanasas Inviational at Bull Shoals Lake, March 29.

The flyrod-only competition will be similar to regular pro BASS tournaments. Only artificial lures can be fished and must be cast with conventional flyrod equipment. A "Bonus" ounce will be awarded for live fish weighed-in. The Arkansas tournament will have a ten-ball limit, and fish will be released.

"Flyrods aren't permitted in regular bass competition because a majority ofcontestants fish with only casting or spinning gear," Harold Sharp, BASS tournament director, said. "Until recently, there hasn't been enough interest among flyrod anglers to include a special flyrod-only division."

Sharp said some 45 to 50 fishermen are expected for the first BASS long rod and bug flippin' contest. "Fly rod fishing has been lost in the shuffle with today's modern bass methods, but many oldtimrs feel it is the true test of a bass fisherman's angling skills," Sharp added.

Bull Shoals, a famous lake on the White River, is expected to be an excellent arena to spotlight the flyrod and bass buggers. The old impoundment has experienced back-to-back super spawns of black bass. Predictably the largemouth will be moving into shallow water and within the bug fishermen's range.

Some $7,500 in cash and awards and qualifying points for the 1975 BASS Masters Classic will be divided among the top 15 flyrod finishers. First prize is $1,400 cash with the runnerup netting $700.

The top point scorers from the 1975 BASS tournament trail will compete in October in the $15,000 winner take-all classic. The hook-and-line world finals is held on a "mystery lake" that remains a secret until the contestants are enroute.

Tournament headquarters for the Arkansas BASS events will be the Bull Shoals Lake Boat Dock, For additional information, contact: BASS Tournaments, P.O. Box 3044, Montgomery, Ala. 36109, or call (205) 272-9530.

Indiana upset

AP Sports Writer

The problem with winning the NCAA Regionals is that it's only half a loaf—it's great while it lasts, but before you know it you have to go back out and fight for the rest.

"It would be nice to savor this victory for a while," said Mike Flynn, whose 22 points paced Kentucky to a stunning 92-90 upset of top-ranked and previously unbeaten Indiana in the Mideast Regional at Dayton, Ohio, Saturday, snapping the Hoosiers' 34-game winning streak.

"But Monday, Coach Hall will be back yelling at us, getting us back ready for the next game."

The next game for Coach Joe B. Hall's Wildcats will be in the semifinals at San Diego March 29 against Syracuse, the Cinderella team of the 1975 NCAA basketball tournament. The 20th-ranked Orangemen, who earlier upset powerful North Carolina, won the East Regional with a 95-87 overtime decision over Kansas State.

"It was a hell of a game," said Syracuse Coach Roy Danforth of the victory over Kansas State, in which Rudy Hackett sent the game into overtime with a basket at the buzzer, then tossed in four of his 28 points in the extra session as the Orangemen pulled away.

After 20th-ranked Syracuse, 23-7, meets fifth-rated Kentucky, 25-4, in the first semifinal at 3 p.m., EDT, Saturday, third-ranked Louisville, 27-2, will take on second-rated UCLA, 26-3, in the second semifinal.

The winners will meet at 9 p.m. Monday, March 31, for the title.

The semifinals and final will be nationally televised by NBC.

The UCLA-Louisville matchup will be a get-together between teacher and pupil. Denny Crum, Louisville's head coach, was an assistant under John Wooden at UCLA before taking over the Cardinals.

But Crum sidestepped the idea of having a chance to beat his mentor, saying, "I'm just happy to be going back out to California again."

The Cardinals earned the trip to San Diego by shooting a blistering 53 per cent from the field in beating fourth-ranked Maryland 96-82 in the Midwest Regional final at Las Cruces, N.M. Phillip Bond topped Louisville with 23 points—14 above his average—and Wesley Cox added 15 despite a painful hamstring injury.

Oddly, some of the loudest cheering in Saturday's final came from Louisville fans late in the game, when it was announced that Kentucky had upended Indiana, keeping alive the possibility of an all-Kentucky final. It may have been the only time Louisville cheerleaders ever led a cheer for Kentucky, their home-state arch rivals.

UCLA, which had its string of seven national 0championships snapped by North Carolina State last year, kept alive its hopes for a 10th title in 12 years by beating seventh-ranked Arizona State 89-75 in the Far West Regional at Portland, Ore. Sophomore forward Marques Johnson poured in a career-high 35 points for the Bruins.

Syracuse, regarded as the long shot of the tournament, will have to handle Kentucky, which avenged an early season 98-74 loss to Indiana in a brutally physical, emotion-charged game.

"Indiana is a great team, but I think we wanted this one a lot worse than they did," said Rick Robey, one of Kentucky's two 6-foot-10 freshmen centers who played a big part in the upset of Indiana, the Big Ten Conference champion which went into the game with a 31-0 record this season. "This game is everything we've been working for since that loss."

Jimmy Dan Conner and Kevin Grevey added 17 points apiece for Kentucky, and Robey and Mike Phillips had 10 points each and battled Indiana's 6-11 Kent Benson under the boards.

"We put greater pressure on Indiana because of their undefeated record and ranking," Hall said. "It's a great burden for them to carry that record into the tournament."

But Bobby Knight, coach of the Hoosiers, bristled at the notion that his team wasn't ready or that the pressure got to Indiana.

"I doubt if there is any team in the country which would ever want to win a ballgame more than Indiana," Knight said. "I've never been around a group I've been prouder of in my life.

"We just were never able to play the type of defense we needed to play and are capable of playing. We just didn't get the job done."

Champs to be fed

The Poplar Bluff Three Rivers Community College booster club will entertain the Missouri class A, AA and AAA state basketball champions tonight at 7 p.m.

"We want to honor these three teams, their coaches and administrators for a job well done," coach Gene Bess noted in announcing the banquet that will be held at the Hickory House.

Southeast Missouri became the capital of Missouri basketball when three of the four state cage champions hailed from the Bootheel. Being feted with the meal will be athletes from Advance, Lilbourn and Charleston, all of which are within a 25 mile radius of Sikeston.

MSWSCA name girls all-state

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — The girls of Wheeling High School dominate the Class A girls all-state basketball team announced today by the Missouri Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association.

Wheeling had three players on the all-state team, the only school in Class A or AA with more than one representative.

The three Wheeling players are Mary Timmons, Paula Littrell and Julie Waite, all seniors.

Rounding out the 10-girl team in Class A are India Norman, Washburn; Sue Banes, Bronaugh; Julie Schmidt, Northeast Nodaway; Becky Proctor, Russellville; Rhonda Sapp, Jamestown; Theresa Steffen, North Shelby, and Tammy Jacquese, Cairo.

The girls Class AA team: Jean Ann Eubanks, Strafford; Denise Toney, Kearney; Barb Gund, St. Joseph's Academy; Gina Valli, Rosati Kain; Helen Meyer, Lindbergh; Lynn Ranston, Marceline; Michelle Ridenhour, Belle; Sharon Farrah, Mexico; Mindy Rutter, South Shelby, and Michelle Holmes, Fayette.

By The Associated Press

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — One-time regular Dan Driessen was placed on the 21-day disabled list and nine other Cincinnati Reds players were sent to the minor leagues Sunday.

Driessen, who suffered a fractured bone in his left wrist during winter ball, won't be available until about the second week of the season.

Sent down were pitchers Santo Alcala, Tom Hume, Dave Overstreet, Larry Payne and Pat Zachry, infielder Arturo DeFreites and non-roster players Oscar Del Busto and Don Werner, both catchers, and pitcher Bruce Taylor.

HOCKEY

SEMS looks to '75 season

Editors Note:

Southeast Missouri State University lists two area players on their baseball roster.

Grant Dambach of Lilbourn, a veteran infielder of the Indians diamond team who hit .281 in 29 games last season, is among a small number of returnees.

Among the new players for the Tribe is Sikeston's James Saulters, an all-star first baseball and power hitter for coach N. P. McDaniels Bulldogs lsast season.

Cut from the squad was all-state infielder Rick Eisenbach of Sikeston. The sharp fielding and leading Bulldog hitter from 1974 gave no reason for his cut, despite the fact that he was having a fairly good spring for the Indians.

CAPE GIRARDEAU — With the weather cold one day and warm the next, rainy one day and crystal clear the next, just how many of eight early home games on Southeast Missouri State University's baseball schedule will be played is uncertain.

One thing is sure, however. In each game that is played, there will be plenty of experimentation on the part of Joe Uhls, who is beginning his 16th year as the Tribe's baseball coach.

Reason for the experimenting is that Uhls has only five lettermen and three other returning squadmen back from last year's squad, which took fourth in the MIAA and went 17-13 overall.

Uhls has shored up the team with six transfer students and what he calls "one of the better freshman crops that we've ever had all the way around." But, he maintains, at this point the team looks respectable only on paper.

"It looks like we've got some good ball players, but everything about our ball club has got to be uncertrain at this point. You can't really say a lot. We might have, but we just won't know until we take these boysout and let them play."

The Indians were scheduled to open the season Thursday, Friday, and Saturday (March 20-22) with doubleheaders each day at Capaha Park here. Also scheduled is a home double header Wednesday (March 26) against the University of Illinois -- Chicago Circle.

Southeast Missouri State placed two players on the first team All MIAA squad last season.

One, Galen McSpadden of near Puxico, is now a pitcher in the San Diego Padres' farm system.

The other, junior outfielder Mark Amick of Illmo, returns, and Uhls hopes he can help provide the leadership needed for a successful season.

Amick led the Tribe in hitting in 1974, batting.382 in 30 games. That was good enough to rank him third in the MIAA batting category and sixth in total hits.

Two other players who hit reasonably well in 1974 are also counted among the returning lettermen. They are infielder Gran Dambach, a sophomore from Lilbourn, who hit .281 in 29 games and outfielder Fred Wahl, a senior from St. Charles, who batted .250 in 21 games.

The other returning lettermen are pitchers. They are Mike Raley, a senior from Festus, and Terry Bazzell, a junior from Jackson.

Raley had a 3-0 record in 1974. He pitched 26 and two-thirds innings and had an earned run average of 1.01. Bazzell won 1 while losing 23 in 20 and one-third innings of work. His ERA was 1.77.

Squadmen back this spring include pitchers Steve Shelton, a senior from Puxico who worked only three innings last season, and Jim Non, a sophomore from Scott City. Noon had a 1-1 chart in 11 and two-thirds innings. Also back is catcher Randall Robbins, a junior from Cape Girardeau. He failed to hit in three appearances at the plate last spring.

Transfers which Uhls will be trying to plug into the Indian line-up include pitchers Dave Jorn of O'Fallon, Ill., and Tim Smith of Poplar Bluff, catcher Skip Morgan of St. Louis, first baseman Tony Korando of Murphysboro, Ill., infielder Don Zalders of Belleville, Ill., and outfielder Gary Schneider of O'Fallon, Mo.

Uhls won his 150th game as a collegiate coach early last spring, and his college record going into this season stands at 160-127-2. He had led the Indians to one division title and one league championship since the MIAA initiated baseball competition in 1966.

Counting his years in the high school ranks, Uhls has been a baseball coach for 26 years.

Mizzou begins drills

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Coach Al Onofrio whistles the opening of spring football practice at the University of Missouri today with 100 candidates looking for jobs.

Onofrio has an opportunity of going with a veteran offensive backfield of quarterback Steve Pisarkiewicz, tailback Tony Galbreath and fullback Annise Davis.

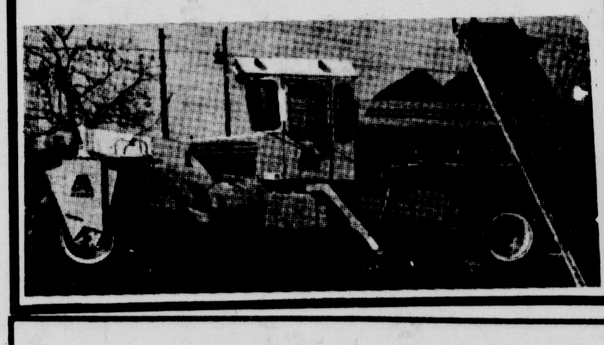

"This is the first time in a long time that we know definitely who the quarterback and special people will be," Onofrio said.

Seven starters on the defensive unit were lost to graduation.

Indiana upset

AP Sports Writer

The problem with winning the NCAA Regionals is that it's only half a loaf—it's great while it lasts, but before you know it you have to go back out and fight for the rest.

"It would be nice to savor this victory for a while," said Mike Flynn, whose 22 points paced Kentucky to a stunning 92-90 upset of top-ranked and previously unbeaten Indiana in the Mideast Regional at Dayton, Ohio, Saturday, snapping the Hoosiers' 34-game winning streak.

"But Monday, Coach Hall will be back yelling at us, getting us back ready for the next game."

The next game for Coach Joe B. Hall's Wildcats will be in the semifinals at San Diego March 29 against Syracuse, the Cinderella team of the 1975 NCAA basketball tournament. The 20th-ranked Orangemen, who earlier upset powerful North Carolina, won the East Regional with a 95-87 overtime decision over Kansas State.

"It was a hell of a game," said Syracuse Coach Roy Danforth of the victory over Kansas State, in which Rudy Hackett sent the game into overtime with a basket at the buzzer, then tossed in four of his 28 points in the extra session as the Orangemen pulled away.

After 20th-ranked Syracuse, 23-7, meets fifth-rated Kentucky, 25-4, in the first semifinal at 3 p.m., EDT, Saturday, third-ranked Louisville, 27-2, will take on second-rated UCLA, 26-3, in the second semifinal.

The winners will meet at 9 p.m. Monday, March 31, for the title.

The semifinals and final will be nationally televised by NBC.

The UCLA-Louisville matchup will be a get-together between teacher and pupil. Denny Crum, Louisville's head coach, was an assistant under John Wooden at UCLA before taking over the Cardinals.

But Crum sidestepped the idea of having a chance to beat his mentor, saying, "I'm just happy to be going back out to California again."

The Cardinals earned the trip to San Diego by shooting a blistering 53 per cent from the field in beating fourth-ranked Maryland 96-82 in the Midwest Regional final at Las Cruces, N.M. Phillip Bond topped Louisville with 23 points—14 above his average—and Wesley Cox added 15 despite a painful hamstring injury.

Oddly, some of the loudest cheering in Saturday's final came from Louisville fans late in the game, when it was announced that Kentucky had upended Indiana, keeping alive the possibility of an all-Kentucky final. It may have been the only time Louisville cheerleaders ever led a cheer for Kentucky, their home-state arch rivals.

UCLA, which had its string of seven national 0championships snapped by North Carolina State last year, kept alive its hopes for a 10th title in 12 years by beating seventh-ranked Arizona State 89-75 in the Far West Regional at Portland, Ore. Sophomore forward Marques Johnson poured in a career-high 35 points for the Bruins.

Syracuse, regarded as the long shot of the tournament, will have to handle Kentucky, which avenged an early season 98-74 loss to Indiana in a brutally physical, emotion-charged game.

"Indiana is a great team, but I think we wanted this one a lot worse than they did," said Rick Robey, one of Kentucky's two 6-foot-10 freshmen centers who played a big part in the upset of Indiana, the Big Ten Conference champion which went into the game with a 31-0 record this season. "This game is everything we've been working for since that loss."

Jimmy Dan Conner and Kevin Grevey added 17 points apiece for Kentucky, and Robey and Mike Phillips had 10 points each and battled Indiana's 6-11 Kent Benson under the boards.

"We put greater pressure on Indiana because of their undefeated record and ranking," Hall said. "It's a great burden for them to carry that record into the tournament."

But Bobby Knight, coach of the Hoosiers, bristled at the notion that his team wasn't ready or that the pressure got to Indiana.

"I doubt if there is any team in the country which would ever want to win a ballgame more than Indiana," Knight said. "I've never been around a group I've been prouder of in my life.

"We just were never able to play the type of defense we needed to play and are capable of playing. We just didn't get the job done."

Champs to be fed

The Poplar Bluff Three Rivers Community College booster club will entertain the Missouri class A, AA and AAA state basketball champions tonight at 7 p.m.

"We want to honor these three teams, their coaches and administrators for a job well done," coach Gene Bess noted in announcing the banquet that will be held at the Hickory House.

Southeast Missouri became the capital of Missouri basketball when three of the four state cage champions hailed from the Bootheel. Being feted with the meal will be athletes from Advance, Lilbourn and Charleston, all of which are within a 25 mile radius of Sikeston.

MSWSCA name girls all-state

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — The girls of Wheeling High School dominate the Class A girls all-state basketball team announced today by the Missouri Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association.

Wheeling had three players on the all-state team, the only school in Class A or AA with more than one representative.

The three Wheeling players are Mary Timmons, Paula Littrell and Julie Waite, all seniors.

Rounding out the 10-girl team in Class A are India Norman, Washburn; Sue Banes, Bronaugh; Julie Schmidt, Northeast Nodaway; Becky Proctor, Russellville; Rhonda Sapp, Jamestown; Theresa Steffen, North Shelby, and Tammy Jacquese, Cairo.

The girls Class AA team: Jean Ann Eubanks, Strafford; Denise Toney, Kearney; Barb Gund, St. Joseph's Academy; Gina Valli, Rosati Kain; Helen Meyer, Lindbergh; Lynn Ranston, Marceline; Michelle Ridenhour, Belle; Sharon Farrah, Mexico; Mindy Rutter, South Shelby, and Michelle Holmes, Fayette.

By The Associated Press

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Onetime regular Dan Driessen was placed on the 21-day disabled list and nine other Cincinnati Reds players were sent to the minor leagues Sunday.

Driessen, who suffered a fractured bone in his left wrist during winter ball, won't be available until about the second week of the season.

Sent down were pitchers Santo Alcala, Tom Hume, Dave Overstreet, Larry Payne and Pat Zachry, infielder Arturo DeFreites and non-roster players Oscar Del Busto and Don Werner, both catchers, and pitcher Bruce Taylor.

HOCKEY

BOSTON — Washington Capitals Coach Red Sullivan, who replaced Jimmy Anderson as coach on Feb. 11, resigned after guiding the team through 17 games. General Manager Milt Schmidt will take over as coach for the final seven games of the team's Natonal Hockey League schedule.

BOWLING

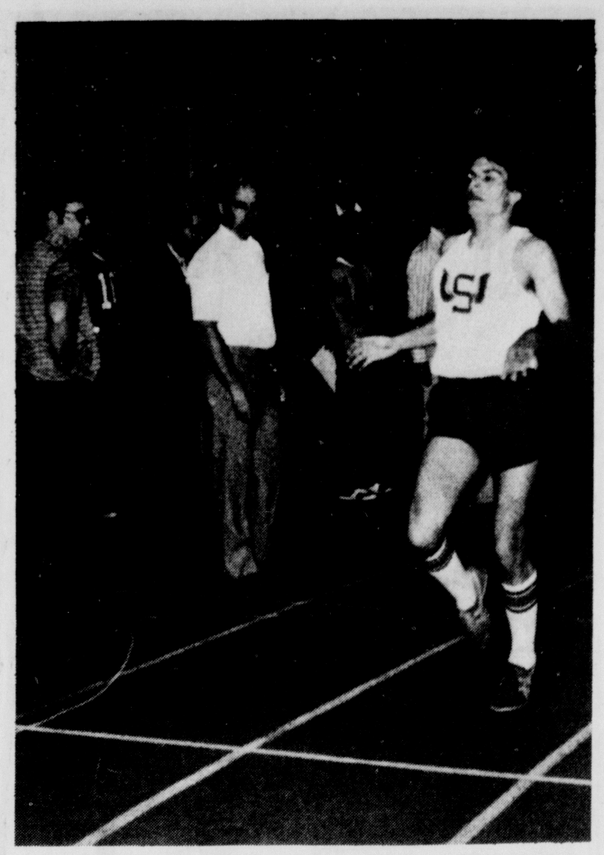

NEW ORLEANS — Don Helling of St. Louis outscored Jay Robinson of Los Angeles 237-213 in the championship game to win the $80,000 New Orleans Open Bowling Tournament.

SKIING

ORTISEI, Italy — Gustavo Thoeni of Italy beat Ingemar Stenmark of Sweden in the final of the dual slalom and won his fourth World Cup ski championship.

GENERAL

PRINCETON, N.J. — Asa Smith Bushnell, former director of the U.S. Olympic Committee and former commissioner of the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference, died of a heart attack at the age of 75.

Seven Sikeston high school tracksters qualified for this weekend's indoor state track meet in Columbia. Among those qualifying was Danny Denton, who placed second in the mile run. In the above photo, Denton idles across the finish line. (Daily Standard Post 143 photo)

SEMS looks to '75 season

Editors Note:

Southeast Missouri State University lists two area players on their baseball roster.

Grant Dambach of Lilbourn, a veteran infielder of the Indians diamond team who hit .281 in 29 games last season, is among a small number of returnees.

Among the new players for the Tribe is Sikeston's James Saulters, an all-star first baseball and power hitter for coach N. P. McDaniels Bulldogs lsast season.

Cut from the squad was all-state infielder Rick Eisenbach of Sikeston. The sharp fielding and leading Bulldog hitter from 1974 gave no reason for his cut, despite the fact that he was having a fairly good spring for the Indians.

CAPE GIRARDEAU — With the weather cold one day and warm the next, rainy one day and crystal clear the next, just how many of eight early home games on Southeast Missouri State University's baseball schedule will be played is uncertain.

One thing is sure, however. In each game that is played, there will be plenty of experimentation on the part of Joe Uhls, who is beginning his 16th year as the Tribe's baseball coach.

Reason for the experimenting is that Uhls has only five lettermen and three other returning squadmen back from last year's squad, which took fourth in the MIAA and went 17-13 overall.

Uhls has shored up the team with six transfer students and what he calls "one of the better freshman crops that we've ever had all the way around." But, he maintains, at this point the team looks respectable only on paper.

"It looks like we've got some good ball players, but everything about our ball club has got to be uncertrain at this point. You can't really say a lot. We might have, but we just won't know until we take these boysout and let them play."

The Indians were scheduled to open the season Thursday, Friday, and Saturday (March 20-22) with doubleheaders each day at Capaha Park here. Also scheduled is a home double header Wednesday (March 26) against the University of Illinois -- Chicago Circle.

Southeast Missouri State placed two players on the first team All MIAA squad last season.

One, Galen McSpadden of near Puxico, is now a pitcher in the San Diego Padres' farm system.

The other, junior outfielder Mark Amick of Illmo, returns, and Uhls hopes he can help provide the leadership needed for a successful season.

Amick led the Tribe in hitting in 1974, batting.382 in 30 games. That was good enough to rank him third in the MIAA batting category and sixth in total hits.

Two other players who hit reasonably well in 1974 are also counted among the returning lettermen. They are infielder Gran Dambach, a sophomore from Lilbourn, who hit .281 in 29 games and outfielder Fred Wahl, a senior from St. Charles, who batted .250 in 21 games.

The other returning lettermen are pitchers. They are Mike Raley, a senior from Festus, and Terry Bazzell, a junior from Jackson.

Raley had a 3-0 record in 1974. He pitched 26 and two-thirds innings and had an earned run average of 1.01. Bazzell won 1 while losing 23 in 20 and one-third innings of work. His ERA was 1.77.

Squadmen back this spring include pitchers Steve Shelton, a senior from Puxico who worked only three innings last season, and Jim Non, a sophomore from Scott City. Noon had a 1-1 chart in 11 and two-thirds innings. Also back is catcher Randall Robbins, a junior from Cape Girardeau. He failed to hit in three appearances at the plate last spring.

Transfers which Uhls will be trying to plug into the Indian line-up include pitchers Dave Jorn of O'Fallon, Ill., and Tim Smith of Poplar Bluff, catcher Skip Morgan of St. Louis, first baseman Tony Korando of Murphysboro, Ill., infielder Don Zalders of Belleville, Ill., and outfielder Gary Schneider of O'Fallon, Mo.

Uhls won his 150th game as a collegiate coach early last spring, and his college record going into this season stands at 160-127-2. He had led the Indians to one division title and one league championship since the MIAA initiated baseball competition in 1966.

Counting his years in the high school ranks, Uhls has been a baseball coach for 26 years.

Mizzou begins drills

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Coach Al Onofrio whistles the opening of spring football practice at the University of Missouri today with 100 candidates looking for jobs.

Onofrio has an opportunity of going with a veteran offensive backfield of quarterback Steve Pisarkiewicz, tailback Tony Galbreath and fullback Annise Davis.

"This is the first time in a long time that we know definitely who the quarterback and special people will be," Onofrio said.

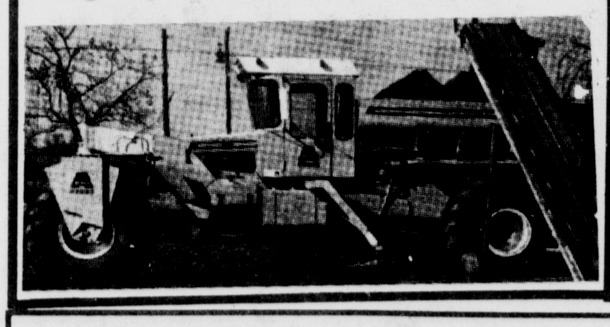

Seven starters on the defensive unit were lost to graduation.

Area residents named to sketch committee

Three Southeast Missourians have been appointed by Gov. Christopher S. Bond to the Bingham Citizens Committee that will seek to raise funds to keep the St. Louis collection of early Missouri drawings in the state.

The historic drawings by famed Missouri artist George Caleb Bingham are housed in the St. Louis Mercantile Library that is seeking to sell them.

The area members of the statewide citizens committee named by the governor are J. P. Tlapek of Cape Girardeau, Mrs. Burt H. Rowe Jr. of Sikeston and Mrs. John H. Dalton Jr. of Kennett.

The sketches have an estimated value of more than $1 million.

The campaign to keep tham in Missouri is being spear- headed by Bingham Sketches, Inc., a not-for-profit corporation. The corporation recently received a $2,500 grant from the Missouri Councilon the Arts for the purpose of acquiring two professional appraisals of the value of the drawings.

Hearnes returns to Charleston

CHARLESTON--Former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes ended a 10-day stay Saturday in a St. Louis hospital and returned to his home.

Hearnes had been treated for influenza symptoms and exhaustion at St. Mary's Health Center. Dr. William A. Knight Jr., the hospital's director of internal medicine, said Hearnes responded favorably to treatment.

The phisician said Hearnes would be required to stay at his Charleston home for further rest.

Three die in weekend traffic

By The Associated Press

Weekend traffic accidents in Missouri claimed three lives.

Glennon C. Halter, 20, O'Fallon, Mo., and Herman L. Coffman, 56, Farmington, Mo., were killed in separate mishaps early Sunday. Mrs. Madeline Richardson, 82, St. Joseph, Mo., died in a St. Joseph hospital Saturday night shortly after a two-car collision.

The highway patrol said a car in which Halter was riding went off Missouri 79 near St. Charles and overturned after striking an embankment.

Coffman was the victim of a head-on collision on Missouri 8 near his hometown.

Mrs. Richardson's husband, Claude Richardson, 80, and Clark Landess, 19, also of St. Joseph, were seriously injured.

Area residents named to sketch committee

Three Southeast Missourians have been appointed by Gov. Christopher S. Bond to the Bingham Citizens Committee that will seek to raise funds to keep the St. Louis collection of early Missouri drawings in the state.

The historic drawings by famed Missouri artist George Caleb Bingham are housed in the St. Louis Mercantile Library that is seeking to sell them.

The area members of the statewide citizens committee named by the governor are J. P. Tlapek of Cape Girardeau, Mrs. Burt H. Rowe Jr. of Sikeston and Mrs. John H. Dalton Jr. of Kennett.

The sketches have an estimated value of more than $1 million.

The campaign to keep tham in Missouri is being spear- headed by Bingham Sketches, Inc., a not-for-profit corporation. The corporation recently received a $2,500 grant from the Missouri Councilon the Arts for the purpose of acquiring two professional appraisals of the value of the drawings.

Hearnes returns to Charleston

CHARLESTON--Former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes ended a 10-day stay Saturday in a St. Louis hospital and returned to his home.

Hearnes had been treated for influenza symptoms and exhaustion at St. Mary's Health Center. Dr. William A. Knight Jr., the hospital's director of internal medicine, said Hearnes responded favorably to treatment.

The phisician said Hearnes would be required to stay at his Charleston home for further rest.

Three die in weekend traffic

By The Associated Press

Weekend traffic accidents in Missouri claimed three lives.

Glennon C. Halter, 20, O'Fallon, Mo., and Herman L. Coffman, 56, Farmington, Mo., were killed in separate mishaps early Sunday. Mrs. Madeline Richardson, 82, St. Joseph, Mo., died in a St. Joseph hospital Saturday night shortly after a two-car collision.

The highway patrol said a car in which Halter was riding went off Missouri 79 near St. Charles and overturned after striking an embankment.

Coffman was the victim of a head-on collision on Missouri 8 near his hometown.

Mrs. Richardson's husband, Claude Richardson, 80, and Clark Landess, 19, also of St. Joseph, were seriously injured.

Dr. Lamb

Increase muscles for better health

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I saw your column suggesting to a woman that she should start a program to increase her muscles in order to lose weight. That's a new idea to me. Would you explain a little more just how one goes about improving their muscles? What kind of exercises and how often does it take? I'm interested in losing weight, but I sure don't want to develop big bulging muscles. It might look all right on a man but not on a woman.

DEAR READER — Women don't have to develop big bulging muscles to do something about muscle building to control their body weight. In fact when done properly it helps most women look a lot firmer and trimmer.

The problem with most exercise programs to control weight is that they are designed to run or burn off calories and that takes a lot of continuous effort.

The basic principle of weight training is to lift a load that is light enough that you can lift it three times in succession without difficulty. When you get so you can lift it 12 times in a row without trouble then you should increase the load. You don't need to strain and grunt or produce hernias.

And, here is the best part, you don't need to have a long daily exercise program. If you lift a weight three to 12 times, three days a week (with one day of rest between the exercise days) you will grow muscle mass faster than if you try to lift the same weight more times daily or several times a day. Too frequent exercise actually slows down the development of muscles. They need time to respond to your stimulating them by weight training.

Most of the gymnastic exercises help to build muscle because the muscle is loaded with the body weight. Push-ups and pull-ups are good examples. You can develop a good routine of these so that all of the muscles in your body are put under load for several repetitions.

And, here is another good point. Once you have developed your muscle mass to the optimal level for you, it is possible to maintain the same amount of muscle and strength by doing the exercises only once a week.

Isometric exercises that contract one muscle against the other one also help to build muscle mass. There are differences in opinion as to how much good you get out of them or how much you need to do, but you can get some benfit.

I think it is important to get some good supervision when you first start a muscle strengthening exercise program so that you will be using all the muscles properly without straining yourself. Many of the YMCA and YWCA organizations are equipped to do this for you.

The muscle building program will build energy tissue that will enable your body to use more energy at rest than it does if too much of your body weight is fat. In two people of identical weight, one fat and the other muscular, the muscular person will use more calories at rest and will have more energy.

These exercises don't replace the need for some endurance exercises, particularly the need for walking, but they help in maintaining posture, helping to control obesity and avoiding the middle-aged spread.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on losing weight, send 50 cents and a long self-addressed stamped envelope to the same address and ask for the "Losing weight" booklet.

Singapore, the independent city-state with a population of nearly two million off the southern tip of Malayia, was a prosperous trade center in the 13th century. It dwindled as a fishing village of about 250 inhabitants until Britain's Sir Stamford Raffles bought it from the Sultan of Johore in 1819 and revived it as an international free port.

Dexter designated Bicentennial city

Dexter — Dexter has been officially designated as a Bicentennial community for the 200th birthday celebration of the United States, according to State Sen. Nelson Tinnin, who said the application was introduced to the Legislature and approval was given.

Written notification of the designation has been sent to Mrs. Jo Worley, chairman of the project, and plans are being made for community ceremonies proclaiming the action.

A mass meeting is scheduled for the Bicentennial committee tonight at the city administration building for the purpose of completing plans for the celebration. Organizations and clubs are asked to send a representative to serve on the committee to the 7:30 p.m. meeting.

Proposed activities include the establishment of a permanent museum for the exhibition of documents and antiques, a bicentennial ball, the construction of a bike trail, re-enactments, a community hoe-down, and art in the park display of 'lost' crafts and many others.

The Bicentennial program is being kicked off locally by a flag, emblem and slogan contest this month. Entrants may send designs to the Daily Statesman-Messenger before March 31. The Bicentennial committee will make the final decision.

Drug suspect pleads guilty

BLOOMFIELD--A Cape Girardeau young man pleaded guilty to a drug sale charge in Stoddard County Circuit Court Wednesday on a change of venue from Cape Girardeau County.

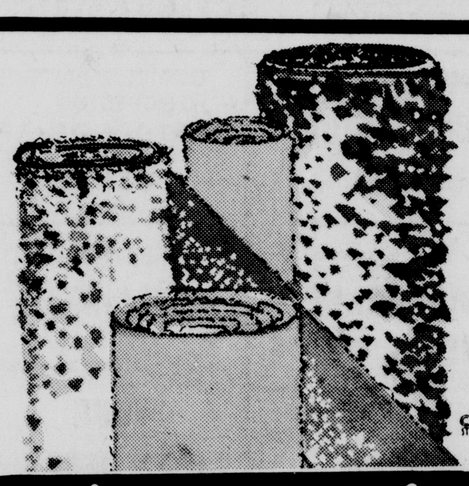

Joe Louis David Davis, 21, entered the plea on a charge stemming from the sale of amphetamines to an undercover agent Cape Girardeau police officer on May 14, 1974.

Judge Flake McHaney ordered a presentence investigation prior to Davis' scheduled reappearance in court April 6.

Davis accepted $125 for the amphetamines. His trial had been set for Monday, but Judge McHaney continued it two additional days so he could enter a plea.

Increase muscles for better health

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I saw your column suggesting to a woman that she should start a program to increase her muscles in order to lose weight. That's a new idea to me. Would you explain a little more just how one goes about improving their muscles? What kind of exercises and how often does it take? I'm interested in losing weight, but I sure don't want to develop big bulging muscles. It might look all right on a man but not on a woman.

DEAR READER — Women don't have to develop big bulging muscles to do something about muscle building to control their body weight. In fact when done properly it helps most women look a lot firmer and trimmer.

The problem with most exercise programs to control weight is that they are designed to run or burn off calories and that takes a lot of continuous effort.

The basic principle of weight training is to lift a load that is light enough that you can lift it three times in succession without difficulty. When you get so you can lift it 12 times in a row without trouble then you should increase the load. You don't need to strain and grunt or produce hernias.

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, March 24, the 83rd day of 1975. There are 282 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

In 1603, the crowns of England and Scotland were joined under James VI of Scotland. He began his reign as James I.

On this date—

In 1683, Rhode Island was purchased from the Indians.

In 1783, Spain recognized the independence of the United States.

In 1882, a German bacteriologist, Robert Koch, announced the isolation of the germs of tuberculosis.

In 1934, President Franklin Roosevelt signed a bill granting future independence to the Philippines.

In 1953, the widow of King George V of Britain, Dowager Queen Mary, died at the age of 86.

In 1965, Senator Robert Kennedy reached the top of Mount Kennedy in Canada's Yukon Territory. The peak had been the highest unclimbed mountain in North America.

Ten years ago: The U.S. Ranger 9 spacecraft crashed on the surface of the moon after sending back nearly 6,000 photos of the lunar surface.

Five years ago: Guerrillas in the Dominican Republic kidnapped the U.S. air attache, Col. Donald Crowley, and held him captive until the Dominican government released 21 prisoners.

One year ago: Uganda crushed a coup attempt against President Idi Amin following a machine gun and mortar battle with rebels.

Today's birthdays: Actor Steve McQueen is 45. Pianist Byron Janis is 47.

Thought for today: One pound of learning requires 150 pounds of common sense to apply it — Persian proverb.

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, March 24, the 83rd day of 1975. There are 282 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

In 1603, the crowns of England and Scotland were joined under James VI of Scotland. He began his reign as James I.

On this date—

In 1683, Rhode Island was purchased from the Indians.

In 1783, Spain recognized the independence of the United States.

In 1882, a German bacteriologist, Robert Koch, announced the isolation of the germs of tuberculosis.

In 1934, President Franklin Roosevelt signed a bill granting future independence to the Philippines.

In 1953, the widow of King George V of Britain, Dowager Queen Mary, died at the age of 86.

In 1965, Senator Robert Kennedy reached the top of Mount Kennedy in Canada's Yukon Territory. The peak had been the highest unclimbed mountain in North America.

Ten years ago: The U.S. Ranger 9 spacecraft crashed on the surface of the moon after sending back nearly 6,000 photos of the lunar surface.

Five years ago: Guerrillas in the Dominican Republic kidnapped the U.S. air attache, Col. Donald Crowley, and held him captive until the Dominican government released 21 prisoners.

One year ago: Uganda crushed a coup attempt against President Idi Amin following a machine gun and mortar battle with rebels.

Today's birthdays: Actor Steve McQueen is 45. Pianist Byron Janis is 47.

Thought for today: One pound of learning requires 150 pounds of common sense to apply it — Persian proverb.

Food stamp applications to be taken

A food stamp caseworker will be in Scott City and Chaffee on April 10 to answer inquiries and take applications for food stamps for Scott County residents, Breman L. Montgomery, director of the Scott County Division of Family Services office, 312 E. Center St., has announced.

The caseworker will be at the DAEO C Center at 1102 Main St. in Scott City from 9 a.m. to noon and will be at the Chaffee Housing Authority office at 800 S. Main in Chaffee between 1:30 and 4:30 p.m.

The worker will answer inquiries, take applications and recertifications for food stamps only for Scott County residents, Montgomery said. Persons receiving aid to dependent children or general relief assistance cannot be helped at these centes, he stated.

Lewallen director named

CAPE GIRARDEAU--The executive board of the Southeast Missouri Council of Boy Scouts of America approved the final details for the new Scout lodge at Lake Wappapello and formally approved a camp director for Camp Lewallen at a meeting Thursday night at Malden.

The lodge, located on 60 acres bordering Lake Wappapello and acquired from the Army Corps of Engineers, will be part of a wilderness area type camp separate from the facilities at Camp Lawallen, Charles Wiles, council publicity chairman, said.

In addition to having sleeping accommodations for 30 boys, the lodge will have kitchen facilities and a shower room. Outside the lodge will be a water well, picnic facilities and tent camping space. There will also be electric power and harbor facilities for canoeing and motor boating, Wiles said.

The lodge has an appraised value of $40,000. The executive board studied final detailed architectural plans before approving the construction. Wiles said the land at the site has already been cleared for construction.

Dr. George Ladyman, council vice president, of Poplar Bluff, presented the report on lodge progress and said it should be completed during the summer. The lodge will be 1,600 square feet, using concrete block on concrete slab.

The executive board formally approved the choice of Brad Whatley, 23, of Gideon as camp director for Camp Lewallen.

Whatley worked at the camp for seven years and attended a national camp school in preparation for the position.

Whatley, presently teaches at Deering . He graduted from Southeast Missouri State University in 1974 with an education degree in speech and English.

The executive board was pleased with the results of the recent recognition of all Eagle Award winners during the Eagle Court of Honor ceremonies, Wiles said. The scouts have received "excellent response" from the local news media and as a result have been floodeda with names of past winners.

William West, chairman of the advancement committee, reported to the board on the dinner. He will oversee efforts to create a National Eagle Association as an outgrowth of the Court of Honor dinner. The association would keep a list of all former Eagle award winners.

Vic Hill, chairman of the activities committee, told the executive board that the annual high adventure trip to Philmont Scount Ranch in New Mexico wa impossible this year because the program was filled up. However, he said scouts may either take a canoe trip to a wilderness area of Minnesota or to the Land Between the Lakes the Lakes in Kentucky or possibly both. Final plans still must be worked out on this.

Joe Kiser, camping committee head, noted that a pre-camp inspection will be held May 17 at 2 p.m. There will also be a regional camp inspection June 26 from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m., with camp members urged to attend, he said.

Training chairman Mel Vogel said the Club Powwow, a one-day intensive training session for den mothers, cubmasters and other adult Cub Scout leaders will be held April 5.

Kenneth Myles reported that John Martin of Sikeston and Earl Stratton of Cape Girardeau recently attended a special training session in Waterloo, Ill. He also noted that those having bids for supplying food for the camp facilities next year must fill out a tentative food list from the scout office and have it returned before the next council meeting April 24.

Wiles said that the computers merit badge clinic that has been held the last two summers at SeMo State University will be continued again this August. He noted that over 100 scouts, both male and female, had attended the two pervious clinics.

The publicity chairman also announced plans are under way for a journalism workshop for scouts to be scheduled about the same time as the other program.

3 killed, many hurt by tornado

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)— Three person was killed and dozens injured today when a tornado hit northwest Atlanta, tearing off part of the roof from the governor's mansion and damaging an apartment complex, police said.

"There's just a lot of destruction," said Police Sgt. Jerry Price. "It looks pretty bad."

State police spokesman Bill Wilson said no one at the governor's mansion had been injured. He said it was not yet known whether anyone in the apartment complex had been injured.

A spokesman at Grady Hospital said "possibly 15 or 20" injured persons had been brought in and others were reported en route by ambulance.

Price, who flew over the area in a helicopter, said cars and trucks had been flipped over, roofs torn from buildings, trees uprooted and power lines knocked down.

Rescue workers dug through the debris of a collapsed building to free one injured man. The body of a second man was reportedly found in that wreckage.

The roof of the Georgia governor's mansion was damaged and trees were uprooted as the storm passed over.

Wilson said the storm hit about 7:30 a.m.

Susan Clough, who works in the governor's office, said the storm blew the windows out of her apartment complex, which is in the same section of town as the governor's mansion.

"All the windows came off. No one was killed thank goodness. My son left three minutes before hand. I was just in a panic," she said.

"I looked out and it was just horrible. All I saw were trees just bending down to the ground."

At the governor's mansion, Gov. George Busbee said the columns in the front of the Neo-Georgian structure were blown down and part of the roof was destroyed.

"All of the front part of the mansion has been destroyed. The main walls are intact," Busbee said. "Over half the trees have been blown over and destroyed. There was very severe damage to the mansion and the grounds but no injuries."

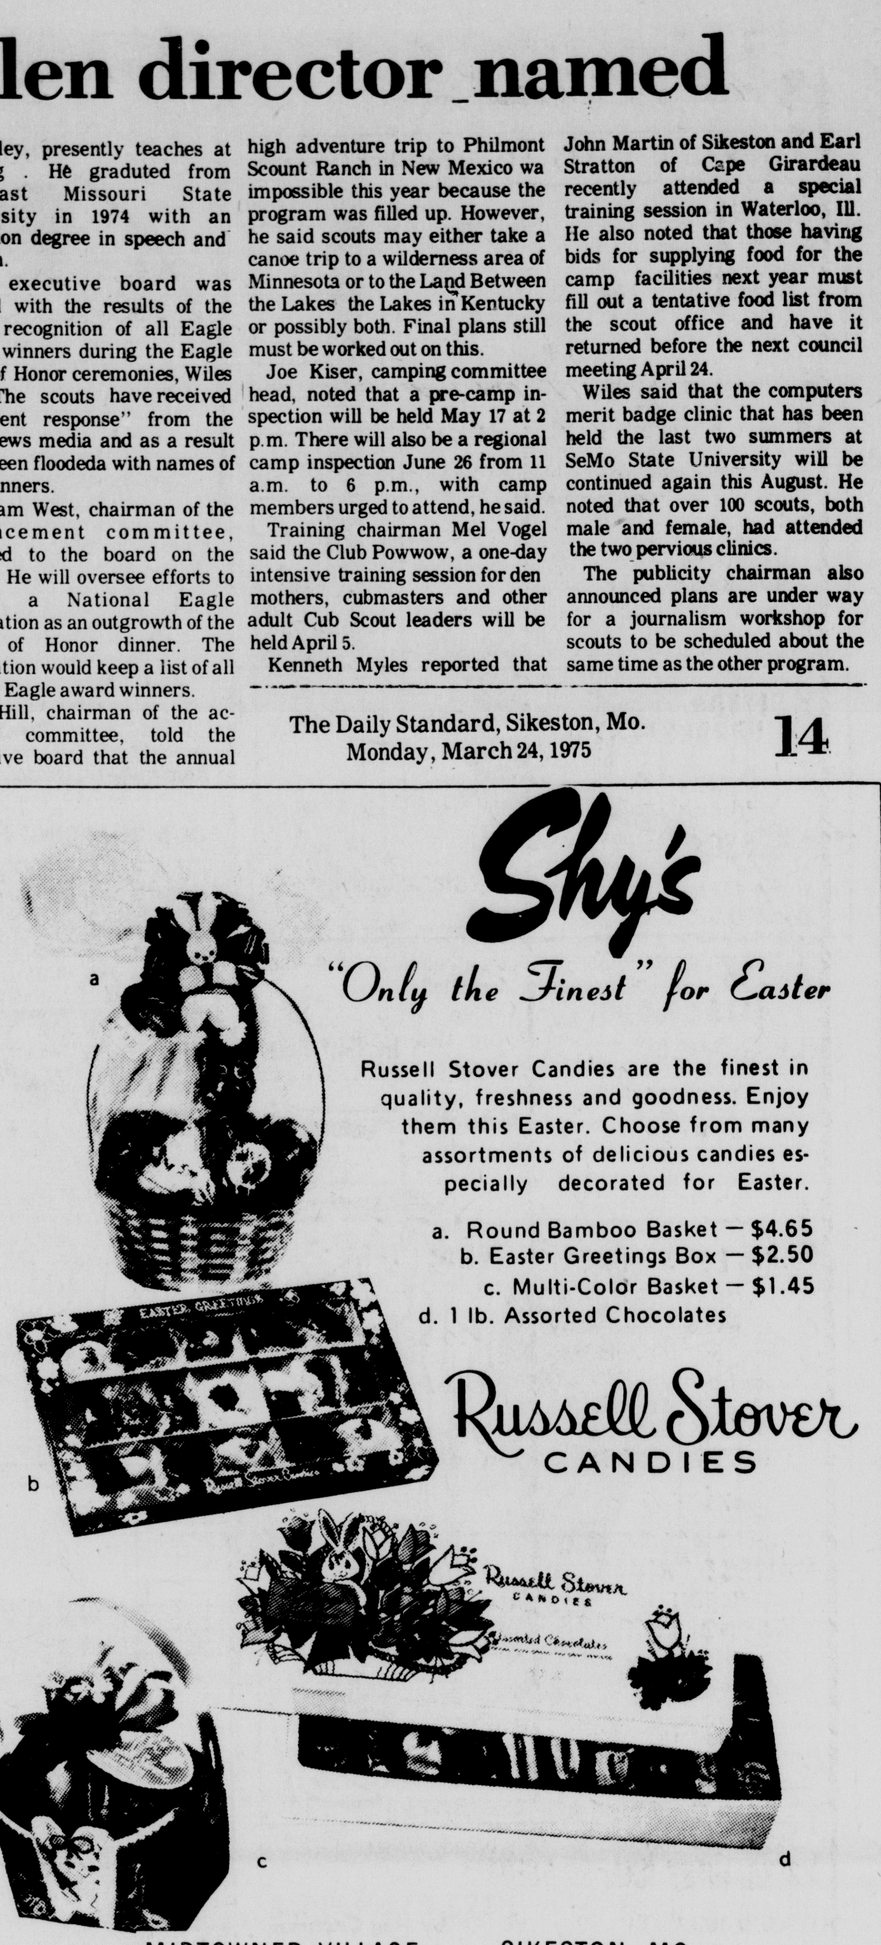

"I heard a roar and knew something was hitting," the governor said "Some, I think, saw the tornado coming before it hit. It was 60 or 70 feet above the ground."

Power lines were knocked down in a wide section of northwest Atlanta.

No. 1

Poplar Bluff.

A car-bus accident Sunday at 11:40 p.m. injured six persons on Interstate 55 five miles south of Sikeston in New Madrid County.

The accident occurred when Eugene Horton Ballard, 32, of Chicago ran his northbound car into the back of a slow moving church bus driven by Robert Scott, 59, of Mound City, Ill. The bus contained 42 passengers besides the driver.

The accident injured five members of the Ballard family. Ballard received serious injuries, as did Judity Ballard, 25, Jamal Ballard, 2, Monea Ballard, 9, and Audrey Ballard, 8. A passenger on the bus, Linda Sue Graham,17, of Mound City, received minor injuries. All of the injured were taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospitalin Sikeston.

In a one-car accident at 2:30 a.m. Saturday five miles northeast of Doniphan on Highway 21, James Blane Kennon, 27, of St. Louis received minor injuries when his southbound car ran off the road at a high rate of speed and struck an embankment. He was taken to Ripley County Hospital in Doniphan.
